$3.5M Sought For Seawalls, Flood Control

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch introduced a request to borrow an additional $3.5 million for seawall replacement and other related flood-control projects in Adams Shore and Houghs Neck.

The bond, introduced at the Oct. 7 City Council meeting, would bridge the gap between money allocated for those causes last month and the bids the city received for the work over the summer.

The new bond was referred to the council's finance committee for future consideration. It could not be approved on Oct. 7 because of advertising requirements.

Earlier this year, Koch submitted a request to borrow $14.32 million to replace the seawall along Adams Shore and Houghs Neck; improve drainage systems in the area behind the new seawall, including a new pumping station; and undertake a study, in partnership with the Army Corps of Engineers, of drainage in the Willows Marsh.

Bids for those items came

Mayor Names 30 'Neat Neighbors'

Mayor Thomas Koch announces the winners of the City's 2019 "Neat Neighbors," a program that aims to recognize those residents that maintain their yard and property in a manner consistent with the themes of a cleaner and greener Quincy.

The 30 winners were chosen at random from more than 150 nominations from throughout the city's many neighborhoods. The winners had to meet the qualifications of maintaining their yard and property and the program does not do comparative judging. Winners will receive a $30 gift certificate from a local garden center to help with their continued efforts next year.

"I want to thank all of the residents who were nominated this season," Koch said. "Most of our residents do a fantastic job in keeping up their properties. This is our way of saying thanks and hopefully encouraging

of loved ones who died from substance addiction were flashed on a large screen to the song, "Amazing Grace" during the 9th annual Can-

The ceremony, which included poems, music, and recitations, honored not only those who were lost to substance abuse, but provided hope and support to those struggling and in recovery. The vigil was hosted by

The tour will begin at the main entrance to the cemetery on Greenleaf Street off Southern Artery.

• On Nov. 3, 1948, the Chicago Tribune jumps the gun and mistakenly declares New York Gov. Thomas Dewey the winner of his presidential race with incumbent Harry Truman in a front-page headline: "Dewey Defeats Truman." Truman would win by 114 electoral votes.

• On Oct. 29, 1956, Israeli armed forces push into Egypt toward the Suez Canal, initiating the Suez Crisis. They would soon be joined by French and British forces. The catalyst for the attack was the nationalization of the Suez Canal by Egyptian leader Gamal Abdel Nasser.

While there is no cost to participate, the bank is kindly asking participants to bring two non-perishable food items to help support Interfaith Social Services' Pantry Shelf.

Onsite shredding services will be provided by Bay State Shredding, member of the National Association for Information Destruction (NAID).

DA Morrissey, Rep. Chan Work To Provide A Second Chance

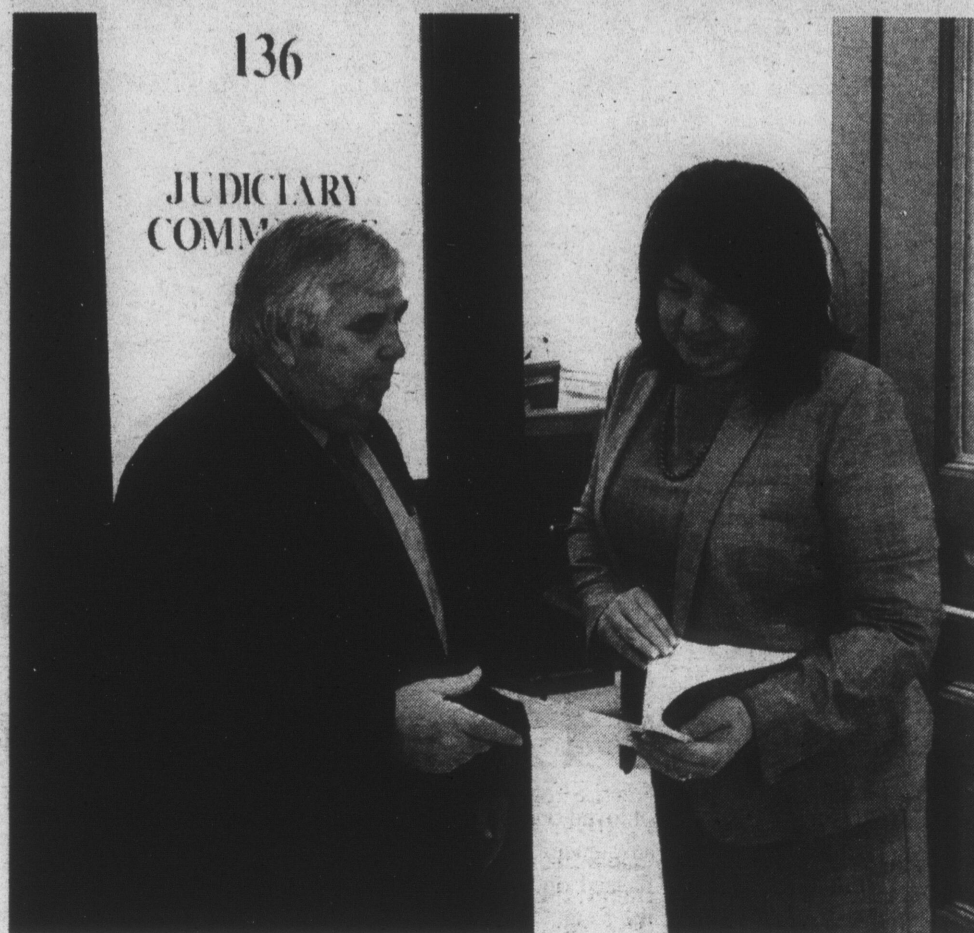

As it stands now, the state's law on expunging criminal records for people who made a single mistake before turning 21 is "very narrow, too narrow," according to Norfolk Dist. Atty. Michael Morrissey.

But DA Morrissey is working with Rep. Tackey Chan (2nd Norfolk) to change that without sacrificing public safety.

"Even a minor criminal record, dating back years, can be an obstacle to employment, education and training," said Morrissey, who was the first Massachusetts district attorney to train local attorneys and court personnel on implementing the new law in 2018.

"In 2018, the legislature created two ways for citizens to have their records expunged. One is for people who were charged with crimes that are no longer crimes, like public drunkenness or simple possession of marijuana," Morrissey said. "The other is for those who had a single, non-violent, non-sexual, non-OUI run-in with police before they turned 21 and have not re-offended."

Morrissey and Rep. Chan's proposal to expand the second mechanism, House Bill No. 3250, had its legislative hearing on Oct. 8 before the Judiciary Committee, which is co-chaired by Rep. Claire Cronin (11th Plymouth) and Sen. James Eldridge (Middlesex &

NORFOLK DIST. ATTY. Michael W. Morrissey met with Rep. Claire D. Cronin, chairperson of the House Judiciary Committee, about his plan with Rep. Tackey Chan to expand the expungement statute.

Worcester District).

"Right now, if a 19-year-old was charged with both trespassing and disturbing the peace after a moment of teen-age idiocy, that case is not eligible for expungement because there are more than one charge on the docket," Morrissey said.

But Morrissey said that very few cases come through with just a single charge, even when the conduct is minor. "If the point of expungement is to relieve people of the effects of a single incident, we believe that the court should be able to consider more than one charge arising from one event. That is what this bill does."

"This is a small change that could make a big difference in a lot of people's lives without creating hardship for anyone," Rep. Chan said. "DA Morrissey and I see this the same way."

The criminal justice system in Massachusetts has evolved in several ways to reflect the growing science about the developing brain, how it shaped behavior across time, and respecting those differences - including increasing the age for entry to adult court up to 18. "The portion of the expungement statute dealing with non-violent, non-sex offenses before age 21 fits into that evolution," Morrissey said. "From my vantage point, I see that we can safely go further and help more people put their past behind them."

Local Veterans Invited To Be Interviewed For Veterans History Service Project Nov. 2

Interviews To Take Place At Quincy College • Call 617-817-2388

The Veterans History Project of the Library of Congress American Folklife Center collects and preserves the firsthand interviews and narratives of U.S. military veterans from World War I through the present.

The United States Congress created the Veterans History Project in 2000. Its mandate ensures future generations may hear directly from those who served to better understand the realities of war. The program relies on a national network of veteran service organizations, universities, secondary schools, community groups and the general public to record interviews according to program guidelines.

An interview of the veteran is conducted by an interviewer and transcribed by a court reporter. The transcript of the interview, along with original letters, diaries, photos, memoirs and historic documents related to a veteran's wartime service, are then archived and preserved at the Library of Congress. Containing more than 65,000 collections, this project is considered the largest oral history program of its kind in the nation.

Who is eligible to submit their service story to the Veterans History Project?

Veterans who served in the U.S. military, in any capacity, from WWI to the present, regardless of branch or rank, and are no longer serving are eligible. VHP accepts the stories of veterans as defined by the Department of Veterans Affairs: "A person who served in the active military service and who was discharged or released under conditions other than dishonorable."

The Veterans History Project will conduct interviews of local veterans who wish to participate in this program.

The local interviews will take place Quincy College, third floor, 1250 Hancock St., on Saturday, Nov. 2 at 10 a.m.

Call 617-817-2388 for further information and to reserve a spot for your interview.

75 TON CRANE AT FITTING OUT DOCK FORE RIVER SHIPYARD, QUINCY POINT, MASS.

THIS IS A 1918 postcard showing the huge 75-ton crane on the fitting dock at the Fore River Shipyard. The crane was installed in 1901 to help build the cruiser Des Moines and the battleship Vermont, the first two large Navy vessels built at the yard. The crane dominated the skyline of Quincy Point for many years, but was nowhere near as large as the Goliath crane that was dismantled in 2008 at the old shipyard. It could lift up to 1,200 tons. The Goliath crane now operates at a shipyard in Mangalia, Romania.

Mayor Threatens Court Action Against M.D.C

Mayor James R. McIntyre threatened to take the M.D.C. to court if necessary, to alleviate morning traffic jams at the Neponset Bridge.

McIntyre said the congestion between 7 and 9:30 a.m. has become unbearable for Quincy residents trying to get into Boston.

"The M.D.C. is trying to feed traffic from Hancock Street and Quincy Shore Drive into two lanes during these rush hours and it is too much squeezing," McIntyre said. "We have asked the M.D.C. to make the traffic four lanes one way north during these hours, but, so far, our pleas have fallen on deaf ears."

McIntyre said he would ask Governor Francis W. Sargent to intervene.

"If there is no response from the governor," McIntyre said, "I will have no alternative than to take the M.D.C. to court."

Portia And Marcia: The Friendship Of Abigail Adams And Mercy Otis Warren At Adams Academy Oct. 24

As part of Abigail Adams' 275th birthday anniversary celebrations, Quincy Historical Society will present a program exploring the friendship between Abigail Adams and Mercy Otis Warren at the Adams Academy on Thursday, Oct. 24th, at 7 p.m.

The Adams Academy is located at 8 Adams St., Quincy.

"My Dear Marcia", began a letter from Adams to Warren in January 1776, when she wrote to her friend to convey her distress about her husband's departure for the Continental Congress. Adams closed it with: "Let me hear from you soon which will much oblige your Friend, Portia."

These pennames invoked great matrons of the Roman republic, and the republican virtues which each woman wished to emulate. It was how they referred to themselves for the better part of the next 10 years, and it is one of many details of personality which can be found within their letters.

They met on a hot summer day in July of 1773.

Abigail Adams was 29 years old, and not yet the confident woman that the hardships of the coming decades would shape her into. Mercy Otis Warren of Plymouth was 45, and already a strong voice within the burgeoning community of revolutionary Patriots on the South Shore. Their friendship spanned the next 40 years of their lives and was rooted in mutual respect and admiration. However, it was also studied with instances of jealousy, resentment, political arguments, and pettiness.

This presentation will explore that friendship; how it began, and how it changed over the years as contemporary events and politics pulled them in different directions. It will seek to provide a glimpse into their daily lives, and into how they thought about themselves, the turbulent times they lived in, and even the place of women within the society that the Revolution was creating.

This event is open to all and free to attend.

O'Donnell Holds Office Hours At Quincy City Hall

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell and his outreach team recently held office hours at Quincy City Hall.

O'Donnell and his team were able to provide attendees with copies of their property deed and explain the benefits of the Homestead Act.

"The Homestead Act provides limited protection against the forced sale of an individual's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000," O'Donnell said. "I urge Quincy homeowners to consider this important consumer protection tool."

O'Donnell noted another benefit of the office hours.

"Registry staff were able to bring land documents back to the office for recording, saving Quincy residents the time and expense of traveling to the Registry's central office in Dedham," he said.

"I want to thank May-

ENC Offers 'Titanic' For 100th Anniversary Season

In celebration of the one hundredth year in Quincy, ENC's Theatre for Social Justice program will launch the largest musical of its historical theatre undertakings, Oct. 17-26.

Eastern Nazarene College's Theatre for Social Justice program opens its 2019-20 season with a production that features 50 cast members, many from the local Quincy and South Shore community.

Titanic, the Musical won the Tony Award for Best Musical when it premiered in 1997 and is not often produced by smaller theatre companies because of its sheer size and technical requirements. Theatre director and producer, Tara

Brooke Watkins, however, said, "This is why I wanted to do it and felt that this anniversary year was the year to do it."

Watkins is adamant about making sure people know this musical is not the movie. "It is not based on the movie, nor does it resemble the movie," she said.

The musical is written by Maury Yeston and Peter Stone and is based more accurately on the book "A Night to Remember" by Walter Lord. A movie by the same name was produced in 1958.

The story features actual characters from the passenger list and weaves together information shared by the survivors of that fateful night in 1912.

"When I realized the true stories of the survivors were used to create the musical," said Watkins, "I knew even more deeply this was the musical we were supposed to do this season." Because the theatre major is now a theatre for social justice major, the students learn how to hear people's stories and create theatre out of them. "It felt like a beautiful match."

The show features the stories of the crew down the class decks all the way into the hull of the ship where coal haulers who gave up mining jobs in hopes of a better life aboard a ship worked stoking the fires. The stories of the third class passengers center around three young Irish women who have big dreams of coming to America.

"I also wanted to highlight the Irish culture in the musical since we have such a huge Irish population in Quincy," said Watkins.

The Oct. 25th performance is being deemed "Irish History Night," starting with a pre-show panel about Irish culture at 6 p.m. and ending with a post-show reception. "We hope to say to our Irish neighbors, 'We see you, we are sorry for what America put you through when you got here.'"

The production runs Oct. 17-26 with performances open to all. Watkins does want audiences to know that there are seats which are considered "obstructed view" — meaning that you won't be able to see the very top of the set if you sit in them. "When I saw the show on Broadway in 1998, I couldn't see the crew's heads either, so I like to say, we're as good as Broadway with this show," said Watkins. Joking aside, audience members who do not want to miss seeing tops of heads should arrive early so they can sit closer to the stage. Watkins also warns that due to the set's appearance for the sinking of the ship, those with vertigo-related problems might want to take their Dramamine before the show.

Performances run as follows: Oct. 17, 19, 24, and 25 at 7:30 p.m., and Oct. 18 at 8:30 p.m. Two matinees are being offered Oct. 19 and 26 at 3 p.m. Tickets: $5 children 12 and under, $10 students/seniors, $15 adults.

All seating is general admission. Doors will open one half hour prior to curtain. For tickets call 617-745-3715 or visit brownpapertickets.com and enter "Titanic the Musical" in the search box.

ENC will present An Original Play about Father Bill's for its social justice play this February and Arsenic and Old Lace in April.

The Fine Print Book Review: 'Dreams Of Falling' By Karen White

By BETH VACCA

It turns out that a successful "beach read" for me has not as much to do with romance as it does with relationships. Specifically the relationship between 3 lifelong friends.

Inspired by a headline declaring this book as the "Best Beach Read of 2018", but mostly because I knew it would be available at the public library, I decided to pick up my beach towel and continue my quest for that fun and easy beach book.

"Dreams of Falling" by Karen White was exactly what I was looking for in a summer read. Friendship, love, loyalty, secrets, romance, betrayal, city life to slow southern style all wrapped up in three generations of women.

Although this novel contains heavy themes such as loyalty and betrayal I was just happy reading about the friendships of these young girls and their journey to young adult, motherhood and through the role of grandparents. How we see each girl at her worst and her best. We witness completely selfish acts followed by selfless acts of love. We watch these girls make mistakes, grow up, love through tears and forgive one another.

Family is important. We've all heard that you can pick your friends, but you can't pick your family, but I wonder at the truth of that saying. Yes, we are able to choose our friends, but once chosen, sometimes at an early age, there are life events and milestones that bind us together. Although my relationship with my sisters is quite different than the ones I have with my friends there is no denying how important friends are in life.

This story gave me the opportunity to reflect on the friendships I have cherished over the years. To remember how we found each other, what attracted us to one another and how we supported each other through the years. It was fun to reflect on what personality I brought to my own circle of friends. There always seems to be the carefree spirit, the grounded and practical one and the one that was just a little bit wild and dangerous. And the fact that whichever one we happen to be we have a tendency to wish to be known as something else.

The plot of this book isn't really what I found important. If you are looking for a book to breeze through on that week vacation and will make you remember your BFF with a smile than check this one out (of the library). And don't forget to read ... the Fine Print.

Sautéed Potatoes And String Beans

By MARIE

I think most of us have a favorite comfort food or dish that they grew up eating. Today's recipe is one for sautéed potatoes and string beans and is one that I still cook and which, years ago, we ate a lot as a side dish.

4 medium sized potatoes
1 pound fresh string beans (frozen or canned can also be used)
3 tablespoons of olive oil
2 cloves of garlic, chopped
Salt and pepper to taste

First, boil potatoes, with the skin on until al dente. Simultaneously, and in a separate pot, boil the string beans until tender.

Drain both potatoes and green beans and let cool.

When cooled, cut string beans into small pieces. Mash the potatoes roughly.

In a large skillet, heat the olive oil, and when the olive oil is hot cook add the garlic.

Add the potatoes stirring and cooking until potatoes are done.

Then add the string beans and stir until well blended.

If you prefer, you can crisp the potatoes by cooking a little longer.

This is a great side dish and can be served with anything, or eaten by itself is delicious too! This recipe is a family favorite!

Black Bean Pumpkin Chili

By SUSIE

Here is a recipe for black bean pumpkin chili for your crock pot since it is that time of year.

There is something about the aroma coming from a crock pot that has been doing its magic for a few hours. Here is a healthy take on a fall and winter comfort food staple.

You can add your ground meat or skip the meat and add a plant based "meat" crumble, or better yet, a container of chopped mushrooms and some extra beans as a replacement.

Once you sauté some of the ingredients the rest is simple. Just set the crock pot and forget about it until dinner.

Pumpkin adds loads of important fiber and nutrients including beta carotene, C, zinc, and potassium.

BLACK BEAN PUMPKIN CHILI

*Use organic ingredients when possible
*2 tablespoons olive oil
*1 medium onion, zucchini, and sweet yellow pepper chopped
*3 garlic cloves, minced
*2 cans (15 ounces each) black beans, rinsed and drained

*1 can (15 ounces) solid-pack pumpkin
*3 cups organic chicken broth (or veggie broth to make vegetarian)

*1 can (14-1/2 ounces) diced tomatoes, undrained

1 lb organic ground beef, chicken, turkey (or plant based crumbles to make vegetarian)

*1/4 cup fresh parsley

*1 1/2 Tablespoons chili powder

1 Tablespoon ground cumin

1-1/2 teaspoons dried oregano

1 teaspoon herbamare or trocomare seasoned salt (or just plain sea salt) 1/2 tsp black pepper

Cubed avocado and thinly sliced green onions, optional

In a large skillet, heat oil over medium-high heat.

Add ground meat, onion, zucchini and pepper; cook and stir until tender. Add garlic; cook 1 minute longer.

Transfer to a 5-qt. slow cooker; stir in the rest. Cook, covered, on low 4-5 hours.

If desired, top with avocado and green onions. Check for seasonings may need more salt. Pasture raised cheddar sprinkled on top is amazing as well.

Chewy Peanut Butter Bars

By MARIE

I think most of us love chewy cookies. Today's recipe is for a chewy peanut butter bar.

When I made them I saved the leftovers in the refrigerator in a storage container. (You can do this if you have any left over.)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees; grease 9 inch square baking pan

Recipe:

1/2 cup peanut butter
5 and 1/2 tablespoons softened butter
2/3 cup sugar
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

1 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
Coarse salt or sugar for a garnish

In a mixing bowl, beat together peanut butter and butter on medium speed for about a 1/2 minute.

Gradually beat in sugars, eggs and vanilla until creamy.

Add the flour, baking powder and salt to the peanut butter mixture until well blended.

Bake until evenly browned around 30 to 35 minutes.

Cool completely on a wire rack before cutting and then cut into squares.

While still slightly warm, sprinkle with the coarse salt or sugar.

Updated Recommendations For Breast Cancer Gene Testing

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

Mutations in two genes, specifically BRCA1 and BRCA2, are known to considerably increase the risk of breast cancer, but researchers have pondered which women should actually be tested for them.

New recommendations from the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force (USPSTF) may shed some light on when the application of these risk assessment tests can be most beneficial. If a woman possesses a high risk, the task force advocates that she see a genetic counselor and perhaps be tested for the BRCA mutations.

Though breast cancer remains prevalent, task force member Dr. Carol Mangione, a professor of medicine and public health at the University of California, Los Angeles, points out that the BRCA mutations are rare, and occur in less than 1% of all women. Thus, determining whether to test a woman for these mutations is a multifaceted decision with a myriad of pros and cons. She contends that women who have tested positive have subjected themselves to some dramatic surgeries and medications, such as having both breasts removed to prevent cancer from developing. She also argues that in women who don't have an increased risk of a BRCA mutation, the conceivable harms outweigh the benefits of testing.

The latest USPSTF recommendations for BRCA testing were published Aug. 20 in Journal of the American Medical Association. According to the task force, testing is applicable for women with a personal or family history of the following cancers:

- Breast
- Ovarian
- Fallopian tube
- Peritoneal (the tissue lining the abdomen).

The task force also advised that women who have an ancestry linked to BRCA mutations, such as those of Ashkenazi Jewish descent, should also have a risk assessment. According to Dr. Padma Sheila Rajagopal of the University of Chicago, lead author of an editorial published Aug. 20 in JAMA Network Open, other groups that may have an increased risk of a BRCA mutation due to ancestry include some African-Americans, Mexicans, Nigerians, and people from India.

Contingent on the results of a risk assessment, a woman may not end up requiring genetic counseling or testing. It's also possible that a woman may have genetic counseling and then decide BRCA testing would not be advantageous for her. The task force also points out that some women don't need a risk assessment at all. These include women who don't have a family history of the four cancers previously mentioned, or an ancestry associated with BRCA mutations.

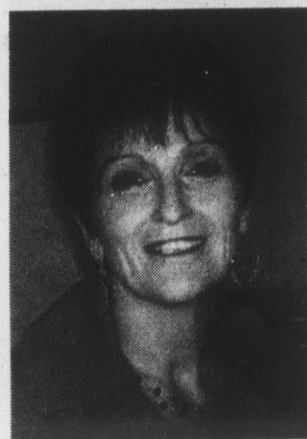

Dr. Len Lichtenfeld, interim chief medical officer of the American Cancer Society agrees that BRCA testing is a pertinent issue, and that these new recommendations may initiate a necessary discussion. However he called the task force's approach conservative, noting it failed to address BRCA testing in men, who can also get breast cancer and other BRCA-related cancers. He also was concerned that the USPSTF did not tackle direct-to-consumer testing. He pointed out that number of companies offer BRCA testing online, however these tests may not be as well-structured as a medical test, thus the findings might be inaccurate, possibly missing an actual mutation.

The task force agrees that over-the-counter (OTC) genetic tests are still new and admits they didn't have enough evidence to make a recommendation, noting that with an OTC test, you may not know what you're getting, and a positive test could create quite a bit of anxiety.

Lichtenfeld also questioned the recommendation that every woman with a high risk based on her doctor's risk assessment should then see a genetic counselor before testing, reminding us that the recommendations are relying on genetic counselors, but too few are available. This recommendation could result in a restricted access to screening for some women.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

New Directions Welcomes New Therapists

New Directions Counseling Center, a program of Interfaith Social Services in Quincy, announces the addition of two therapists to their team of mental health and addiction recovery professionals.

Brett Dixon and Caitlin Kaake joined New Directions' team in early August. New Directions has been providing compassionate and skilled counseling to families and individuals on the South Shore since 1947. All clinicians are professionally trained, licensed independent clinical social workers, licensed mental health therapists or masters-level clinicians.

Dixon earned a B.A. in philosophy and religious studies at Salve Regina University and a M.A. in clinical mental health at Lesley University. He works with clients of all ages and specializes in depression, anxiety, PTSD, grief and substance abuse. Dixon has experience working with children in both hospital and community settings and with adults with dual diagnosis who are currently experiencing homelessness.

Dixon utilizes a holistic and client centered approach to counseling, often combining mindfulness, cognitive behavioral therapy, existential therapy and narrative therapy to help clients better understand their symptoms and find an individualized and meaningful approach to healing. He believes that healing develops through building positive relationships and works to create a safe, comfortable and open environment for all his clients.

Kaake earned a B.A. in psychology and religion at Amherst College and a M.A. in counseling from Northwestern University. She works with clients of all ages, dealing with issues that include depression, anxiety, OCD, low self-esteem, social anxiety, grief, perfectionism and miscarriage/infertility.

She utilizes an integrative approach, drawing from cognitive-behavioral, strengths-based, narrative, and play therapy, always with a focus on helping clients understand their symptoms in the larger context of their lives. "I believe people make the most lasting change when they not only understand what their habits and problems are, but where they came from, and how they've gotten through them so far," Kaake said.

"I want people to leave feeling that they've made successful changes, but also that they have a renewed interest in and understanding of themselves as individuals."

Kaake also uses Christian counseling for those who want to include their Christian faith in their therapy. Her focus is on creating a comfortable space for clients to be themselves, have their thoughts and feelings respected, and feel fully involved in the treatment process.

New Directions Counseling Center provides services in a comfortable and confidential atmosphere. Therapists provide an individualized, dynamic and respectful approach. Most insurance is accepted. A sliding-fee scale is available to those without coverage to accommodate all who need services.

Quincy Credit Union Donates 600 Backpacks

Supporting the community, specifically Quincy Public Schools, is nothing new for Quincy Credit Union. After all, for 13 years, QCU has supported Clifford Marshall Elementary School by providing each student with a backpack filled with school supplies.

This community sponsorship includes backpacks, and supplies students need and sometimes families can't afford. Over the summer, the work begins. The coordination and delivery of hundreds of pencils, erasers, notebooks, etc., are each carefully and thoughtfully organized, bundled and placed into 600 backpacks; waiting for the students' return.

This year, QCU staff and members of the Quincy Public School Administration visited each classroom to make special deliveries to every student. Scottie Saver, QCU's Mascot, joined in the fun, turning school into a backpack dance party complete with a student dance off, hugs and high fives. It was heartwarming to see the student's excitement and appreciation while they sorted

4-H Seeks Adult Volunteers

Adult volunteers are currently needed for a couple of hours each month to serve as club leaders for local 4-H clubs in Bristol and Norfolk Counties.

The role of a 4-H volunteer leader is to provide skills from your own area of expertise while developing a meaningful relationship with youth. Especially needed are volunteers with skills in dog care and obedience, horse care, small animal care such as rabbits and poultry, food science and general science.

The goal of the 4-H program is to help youth, ages 5 to 18, become competent, caring adults through positive mentoring, learning how to take community action, and increasing their sense of self-esteem, responsibility, fairness, trust and decision making techniques. The 4-H office provides training, resource materials, activity curriculum and support.

"We need people who have an interest in spending time with young people and who want to learn alongside them," said Jay Field, 4-H Educator for Bristol and Norfolk Counties.

For more information on becoming a volunteer, contact the 4-H office at (508) 668-9793 or by email at jfield@umext.umass.edu. 4-H is an outreach education program of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst in cooperation with the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. It is one of the largest youth organizations in the U.S. More information also available on the 4-H website: www.mass4h.org.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty: Understanding The Family Maximum

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: My husband passed away when our children were 3 and 5 years old. I received benefits for myself, our two children and my 14-year-old son from a previous relationship. When my 14-year-old son turned 18, the amount he received stopped and was added to ours, keeping the total family amount the same. Then in July of this year my youngest daughter turned 16 so I fell off with that amount now going to my kids. Again, the total family amount stayed the same - $625.00 each for my daughter and son. The very next month in August, my youngest son turned 18 so of course, he fell off. I called Social Security and the representative said that she couldn't guarantee that my son's full amount will go to my daughter. It turns out that none did, decreasing the family amount by $625.00. My question is why was the family amount reduced when she still has 2 years before she turns 18? Signed: Confused Survivor

Dear Confused: I understand your confusion - let me clarify what happened in your situation: Social Security (SS) sets a "Family Maximum" amount, which is the most all eligible family members combined can receive from a worker's (your husband's) record. SS uses a rather complex formula to compute the Family Maximum amount, but it comes out to be somewhere between 150% and 180% of your husband's "primary insurance amount" (or "PIA," what he was entitled to when he passed). The family maximum is in effect whenever there are multiple beneficiaries on a worker's record.

The benefits you were personally receiving were "child in care" benefits which entitled you, as a surviving spouse with a minor child, to collect 75% of the benefit your husband was receiving, or entitled to receive, at his death. Child in care benefits stop when the youngest child reaches 16 years of age. Each of your 3 minor children were also entitled to receive 75% of their deceased father's (or stepfather's) benefit amount. Minor children can receive 75% of the deceased parent's benefit until they reach 18 years of age (or 19 if still in high school). However, all benefits are subject to the "family maximum." The total of benefits paid to all survivors of the deceased is limited to that family maximum and, if that amount is reached, all eligible survivors share equally in that family maximum amount. Then as each survivor becomes ineligible due to their age, the remaining survivors each receive a proportional share of the family maximum amount, but that adjustment cannot result in an individual's benefit being more than they are otherwise entitled to (their maximum individual benefit of 75% of your husband's PIA).

When your oldest son turned 18 and became ineligible, the sum of benefits due all remaining survivors was still more than the family maximum, so the family maximum amount was equally divided among the remaining eligible survivors. Then, when your eligibility for child-in-care benefits ceased when your youngest turned 16, your two remaining minor children each received either a) their equal share of the family maximum, or b) 75% of their father's PIA (their normal entitlement as a surviving minor child). When your youngest son turned 18 and became ineligible, your youngest daughter was then eligible to receive only her full benefit as a minor surviving child (75% of your husband's benefit), which she can continue to receive until she is 18 (or 19 if still in high school). So, as you can see, the family maximum isn't an amount which is fully available to any survivor, it is an amount that restricts the total amount which can be paid to all when there are multiple eligible survivors.

Please note that at age 60 you are once again eligible for a surviving spouse benefit, which will be based upon 100% of the benefit your husband was entitled to at his death, subject, of course, to normal reductions and earnings restrictions for claiming benefits before your full retirement age.

Council Commends SAL Squadron 294

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors recently honored members of the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, in recognition of the group's myriad achievements.

Councillor Noel DiBona, who is also the squadron's junior vice commander, presented the citation on Oct. 7.

"Under the leadership of Commander Paul Moody, a lot of these awards have come into existence because of all their hard work," DiBona said. "We thank you for all your dedication and support of living and deceased veterans."

The awards received by Squadron 294 include a 2019 citation of achievement from the Sons of the American Legion for recognition of outstanding endeavors in surpassing membership totals from the prior year as of the American Legion's birthday in March; a citation of achievement 2018-19 for 100 percent membership; the 2018-19 Robert "Bo" Fifield Memorial Scrapbook Award; a certificate of appreciation for the largest donation made to the Detachment Commanders Project in 2018-19, which benefits Operation Comfort Warriors; the Sons of the American Legion of Massachusetts Commanders Award; and Children First Gift Club Guardian award for 2018-19 from the America Child Welfare Fund.

City Council President Brad Croall thanked the squadron members for their, "tremendous service to our community."

"Gentleman, we really appreciate it," he said.

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes called the squadron a group of dedicated individuals and said it was good to see younger people, like DiBona and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, be active in the organization.

"I just want to encourage anybody out there who is in need of a service organization – a veteran, someone who is returning – to give a thought to the post because it is such a great organization that does so much for the city," Hughes said.

"Thank you so much for your kindness to me, for your kindness to the city, and your kindness to the country and each other."

$8.5M Sought For Special Education Center

By SCOTT JACKSON

A request to borrow $8.5 million to purchase a Wolaston office building and convert it into a special education center was introduced at the most recent meeting of the City Council.

The bond request, introduced Oct. 7, was referred to the council's finance committee for consideration at a later date.

At a press conference earlier this month, Mayor Thomas Koch and Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro announced plans to purchase the building at 180 Old Colony Ave. and renovate the three-story, 52,900-square-foot building into a new special education center that could open as soon as next fall.

The $8.5 million bond would cover the cost of purchasing and renovating the building. Eastern Nazarene College owns the building, which is located behind Central Middle School. It is home to several tenants, including the Woodward School, which is using the building on a temporary basis while its home in Quincy Center is being renovated.

The school system currently transports 152 special education students to schools outside the city, DeCristofaro said, at a cost of $80,000 to $100,000 annually per student, including transportation and tuition.

Koch said the new building would be able to accommodate 30 to 40 of those students, saving the city between $300,000 and $500,000 each year, even after accounting for debt service payments for the building and the cost to staff and maintain the facility. Special education students currently attending schools in Quincy could likewise be accommodated in the new facility; the building could potentially take in students from other school districts as well.

The facility would accommodate students from pre-kindergarten to middle school, officials said. Laura Owens, the assistant to the superintendent, said the categories of students with special needs who would move to the new building has yet to be determined.

"We are still in the process of figuring out what they will be," she told The Sun.

Koch said he would like to see the City Council approve the bond before the end of December. The School Committee and school administrators would then work to determine programming for the building.

DOVE Receives $25,000 Wells Fargo Grant

DOVE (DOMestic Violence Ended) Inc., an independent non-profit organization providing assistance to survivors of domestic violence, has received a $25,000 grant from Wells Fargo & Company.

The grant will support DOVE's growing Community Advocacy and Prevention Services Center and critical programs and services which take place there. DOVE has recently moved to a new location in Quincy Center, where it has been able to expand the range of programs and services available to individuals, children, and teens, as well as community members and service providers.

"We at DOVE are absolutely thrilled about this grant from Wells Fargo and its commitment to break the cycle of domestic violence," said DOVE Executor Director Sue Chandler. "Wells Fargo's support will enhance DOVE's ability to provide the broad range of services DOVE offers. It enables us to continue to address the isolation and vulnerability faced by victims of domestic violence and the enormous emotional, psychological, and financial toll violence takes on victims, their children, and the community. We are deeply grateful."

Friends Of Wollaston Beach Hold Annual Kids' Fest

The calendar may have said, "September," but the weather said "July" for the annual Friends of Wollaston Beach Kids' Fest.

Kids of all ages enjoyed the inflatables, games, contests, DJ, dancing, face painting, glitter tattoos, and – the hit of the afternoon – rides on the Quincy Police boat. Special thanks to Lt. Robert Gillan and the Quincy Police Marine unit for this wonderful opportunity to interact with those charged with policing 26 miles of Quincy's coastline. Thanks also to the Wollaston Yacht Club and its members for hosting that portion of the day's events.

In addition to all the activities, each child received a beach-related item – a beach ball, sand shovel, fish net, or frisbee, and a bottle of bubbles and a coloring book. Thanks to the Massachusetts Division of Marine Fisheries and Massachusetts Boating and Yacht Clubs Association (MBYCA) for the coloring books.

Save the Harbor/Save the Bay (SH/SB) generously provided a joint grant to Friends of Wollaston Beach and Discover Quincy not only for Kids' Fest, but Wolly Wednesdays, Tot Lot events and so much more to enhance our enjoyment of the Beach. SH/SB was also heavily involved on the day of the event. They brought performers from the Boston Circus Guild – including an aerialist, a hula hooper, and an acrobat pair. Also featured was a Touch tank with Save the Harbor's Youth Environmental Education Program staff – fish prints and an interactive art activity using plastic water bottles collected from the region's beaches.

"The best way we know to 'Save the Harbor,' is to 'Share the Harbor' with the public through free events and programs," said Chris Mancini, SH/SB's Vice President. "We are so proud to partner with and support Friends of Wollaston Beach, who bring such amazing events to the Quincy community every year."

Maureen Mazrimas, president of FWB, especially wanted to recognize a number of people who were unavailable when the photo was taken. Carla Moran and George Kober were busy managing the face painting, Chris and Jeff Kuhn and Marcia Roos were working with the Quincy Police, and Mark and Kristen Awed Ladas were transporting tents, tables and signs.

Special thanks to Margaret Laforest, formerly of Discover Quincy for her incredible commitment to this City, the Houghs Neck Community Council, Andrew Cloherty of Wollaston Yacht Club, North Quincy HS Jr. ROTC cadets, Chris Mancini of Save the Harbor/Save the Bay, and Bob Cashman of DCR. Councillors Seek T Shuttle Buses Between Squantum Point Park, NQ Station

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors are backing Rep. Bruce Ayers' call for the MBTA to provide shuttle bus service between Squantum Point Park and the North Quincy Red Line station to compensate for the loss of parking spaces at the latter during construction of a mixed-use development.

Councillors approved the resolution, introduced by Ward 6 Councillor William Harris, in a unanimous vote on Oct. 7.

Ayers in August asked the MBTA to utilize Yankee shuttle buses – which had been running shuttle service to Wollaston station while it was being renovated – to provide service between North Quincy station and Squantum Point Park after Wollaston reopened that month.

Squantum Point Park, owned by the state Department of Conservation and Recreation, holds 800 parking spaces and is a stop on the Winthrop ferry, which provides service to Boston through next month. Ayers said running shuttles between the station and the park would give commuters the option of riding the ferry in lieu of taking the Red Line to Boston. Commuters could also park at Squantum Point Park in case there is no parking available at North Quincy while construction is underway.

Harris on Oct. 7 said the reopening of Wollaston station, which has some 400 parking spaces on site, did not make up for the loss of 600 parking spaces at North Quincy when construction of the new development began earlier this year.

"While Wollaston coming back brings some spaces back into the fold, it isn't enough to adequately make up for the loss in parking," Harris said.

"The MBTA has offered some positive mitigation projects as part of the construction...but the current mitigation plan does not go far enough to provide adequate relief for frustrated commuters."

Harris noted Squantum Point Park is less than two-and-a-half miles from the North Quincy station, and the city has completed the extension of Commander Shea Boulevard to provide access to the park so drivers can access it without traversing through Marina Bay. The extension of the roadway was funded by the state as part of the mitigation package.

Councillor Nina Liang, who resides in North Quincy, thanked Ayers and Harris for raising the issue with the MBTA because the loss of parking spaces at North Quincy station has negatively impacted traffic in the area.

"I am thrilled you guys are staying on top of that with them, making sure that they are being held accountable to continue to help mitigate essentially what is a commuting nightmare in that neighborhood right now," Liang said. "I will continue to work with you guys to hold their feet to the fire."

Councillor Noel DiBona said the parking area at Squantum Point Park is underutilized and establishing shuttle service to and from it would be a win-win.

"There is a parking lot there that is underutilized, and you have all these spaces, with the construction at North Quincy, not being utilized," he said. "It is a win-win for the city and our residents to encourage ferry service and to encourage the mitigation of all these parking concerns."

Councillor Anne Mahoney said the T needs to work with Quincy officials to make up for the lack of parking at North Quincy.

"They really do have to work with the city to be able to help move people in and out of the stations to get them in and out of town," she said. "I'm really hoping they listen to this and they push forward and provide the shuttle buses."

Construction of the mixed-use project at North Quincy began in February, when some 600 parking spaces on the Hancock Street side of the station closed. Another 600 spaces remain open at the station, including ones in the lot on Newport Avenue and others on the Hancock Street side.

The new development on site, named The Abby in honor of Abigail Adams, will be home to 610 apartments, 45,000 square feet of retail space and parking for 1,600 vehicles, including 852 spaces for MBTA users. The developers behind the proposal have said Target will move into the site once it is complete.

The first phase of the project, which includes the new parking garage at the heart of the development, is set for completion next summer. The remainder of the site should be finished by 2022.

Treatment Center Plans Back Before ZBA

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposal to open a new facility on Broad Street offering medication-assisted treatment to patients with substance-use disorders is back before the Zoning Board of Appeals.

The ZBA in February denied Habit OPCO's request for a special permit to move into 39 Broad St. Board members at that time cited concerns with traffic in the area and the possibility that the treatment center could attract additional patients if it moved to the building on site.

The applicant subsequently appealed that decision in Superior Court. City Solicitor Jim Timmins on Oct. 8 told the board that a judge remanded the matter back to the ZBA after finding the proposal would not impact traffic and parking in the area.

"The court did not make any sort of conclusion or finding that anything was done in bad faith, but there was a concern that preventing this use from going into 39 Broad was not going to make things substantially worse and it also wasn't really going to make anything all that different or better," Timmins said.

"Your attempt to address the situation by not allowing this to go forward was annulled by the court."

The judge remanded the matter to give members a chance to impose conditions, Timmins added. The city solicitor said he and Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca are working with the applicant to draft those conditions, including ones relative to parking on site. Timmins said those conditions should be ready to vote on at the board's Oct. 22 meeting.

Habit OPCO has been located in Quincy for the past three decades, Carolyn Murray, the applicant's attorney, told the board in February, and currently does business in the city as the Quincy Comprehensive Treatment Center. The company has a counseling center at 1515 Hancock St. and offers medication-assisted treatment, which is provided out of a van at a different Broad Street address.

Habit OPCO had proposed to consolidate its operations at 39 Broad St., offering counseling and medication-assisted treatment on site. The building at 39 Broad St. is home to a plumber, an auto parts and veterinary warehouse and retailer, Murray said, and Habit OPCO was seeking to move into the space occupied by the plumber.

Habit OPCO serves some 160 patients at its Quincy locations. Each patient receiving medication-assisted treatment also receives counseling, typically once a week.

Matthew Davis, the company's regional vice president, said most medication is distributed between 5:45 and 9 a.m. Most of the counseling takes place during that time frame as well with additional counseling and intake appointments through the rest of the morning. Administrative meetings take place until 2 p.m., when most employees leave. Counseling is provided on one evening each week as well.

Davis said Habit OPCO formerly had mobile vans in Brockton, Taunton and Lakeville in addition to Quincy. The other three communities now have clinics located in permanent sites.

State Officials Tour Squantum School

By TOM GORMAN

Representatives from the Massachusetts School Building Authority (MSBA) recently toured the Squantum Elementary School to see first hand its antiquated infrastructure as part of the process of city's proposal to replace the 100-year-old school with a modern facility.

Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro informed the school committee recently of the MSBA's Sept. 9 visit. The superintendent was joined by the city's Public Buildings Director Paul Hines along with assistants Walter MacDonald, David Scott, and Gary Cunniff and the school department's Director of Custodial Services Kevin Segalla with the MSBA's CEO Jim MacDonald and Director of Program Management Diane Sullivan and four other authority representatives for the tour.

DeCristofaro said the state's visit was in response to the city's Statement of Interest submission to the MSBA last February that basically is an application outlining the school's deficiencies and seeking the authority's approval for a new facility. He explained the group not only checked out the school's infrastructure, but also met with staff.

"I think they were impressed with the school and the culture," he said. "They talked to some teachers and visited classrooms and looked at the boiler room and kitchen services. They looked at everything and talked to people about our educational delivery."

DeCristofaro said he is hopeful the multi-phase process will move to the next step - the Eligibility Period. This involves a further review over 270 days including a determination by the state of the city's funding sources for the project.

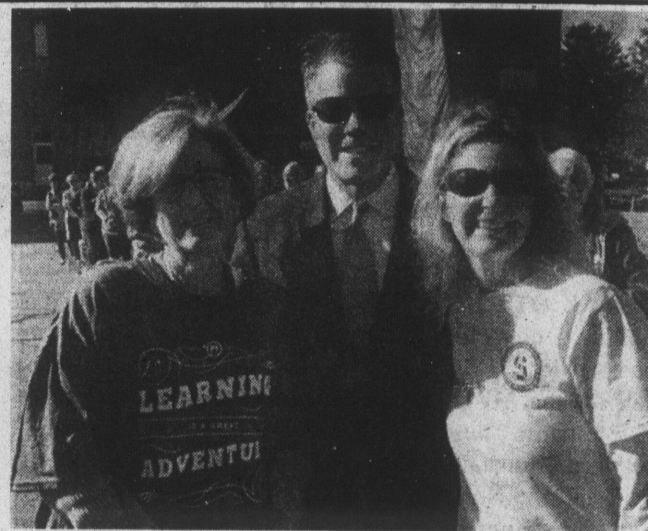

"We're hoping within the next few weeks that we will be granted to go into the Eligibility Period," he said. "It's about 270 days of a lot of different reports by us to them."

If approved for this phase, the proposal goes into a feasibility study where a project team is formed by the district to work with the MSBA to set the scope and budget for the project. After this, a design plan is drawn up and submitted for review and approval. Finally, a funding agreement is then inked between the state and the city that clears the way for construction to begin.

If the MSBA ultimately approves the plan, they would award Quincy a grant that would pay for more than half of eligible construction costs.

DeCristofaro said the visit went well and that the city should be in a good place as the process moves along.

"I think we put our best foot forward," DeCristofaro said of the state's tour. "We look forward to getting into that Eligibility Period."

According to the Statement of Interest, the Squantum Elementary School was built in 1919 and an addition constructed in 1971. The statement indicated that the building has not been upgraded in decades.

"In 45 years, it has not received any substantial upgrades or improvements to the infrastructure or to the interior, exterior structures," the statement read. "Although the custodial and maintenance staffs are attentive to this building's operational needs, a large portion of Squantum's mechanical, electrical and plumbing systems were installed during the original construction of the facility."

Calling the existing school "obsolete," the statement explained that it cannot provide the basis for today's educational requirements and that a new school would provide the academic needs for a new generation of learners.

"Aside from the improvements needed to the physical plant, educational components crucial for 21st century elementary schools are lacking, specifically classrooms equipped for the integration of educational technology and STEM (Science Technology Engineering Math) concepts integral for standards-based instruction for regular education, special education and English Language Learners," read the statement. "Squantum's nurse's office, student support staff offices, cafeteria/gymnasium and media center are all undersized and under-equipped by modern educational standards."

Quincy's application is one of more than 100 the state receives yearly seeking funding for new schools.

"They come out and take a look at a lot of buildings across the state and then decide which ones are the ones in most of need," the superintendent said.

The MSBA has approved three school building projects for the city over the past several years. The new Quincy High School was built in 2010 and three years later, the new Central Middle School opened. This June, the South-West Middle School - that replaced Sterling Middle - welcomed students.

The MSBA also partly funded several upgrade projects for the district's schools this summer. These included the installation of new boilers and roofs.

"They have been an extraordinary partner," said DeCristofaro. "They know us and we know them."

In other matters, the superintendent informed the committee that the district enrollment is up nearly 70 students. He said 75 percent of elementary class sizes are 20 or fewer with the average of 19 while 57 percent of middle school class sizes are 23 or less. At the high school, 80 percent of the classes have fewer than 26. Those classes with 25 or more will be addressed.

Several new administrative appointments made over the summer.

These include Courtney Mitchell, Merrymount Elementary School principal; Aliza Schneller, Atlantic Middle School principal; Kristen Dwyer, Lincoln Hancock Community School assistant principal; Mary Hurley, Montclair Elementary School assistant principal; Paul Griffith, Central Middle School assistant principal; Susan DeCoste, Point Webster Middle School principal.

Also, Susan Foley, South-West Middle School assistant principal; Helena Skinner, Assistant Principal for Student Support & Operations at North Quincy High School; Noreen Holland, Assistant Principal for Teaching & Learning at North Quincy High School; Heather Wojcik, coordinator of English Learner Education; and Marisa Forrester, coordinator of Data and Assessment.

Two new school nurses were appointed: Heidi Richardson for Central Middle School and Paula Melchin, who will be floating between schools.

Registry Of Deeds Celebrates Building Rededication, Records Book

It was an event to hail the new as well as the old as Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell celebrated the rededication of the 116-year-old Registry building as well as the launching of its new Volume 2 Edition of its Notable Land Records book.

O'Donnell, with an actor portraying President John Adams at his side, gave a brief history lesson about a building which today is the repository of more than 8 million Norfolk County land records.

"The old Registry building, located in Dedham, was built on land previously owned by Fisher Ames, a prominent member of the Federalist Party," O'Donnell said. "Construction of this building began in 1903 and was completed in 1905."

Additionally, O'Donnell noted how shrewd Norfolk

County residents were to have purchased the land through legislation back in 1899 for $17,198.

O'Donnell also talked about the renovations and repairs that have taken place during the past few years.

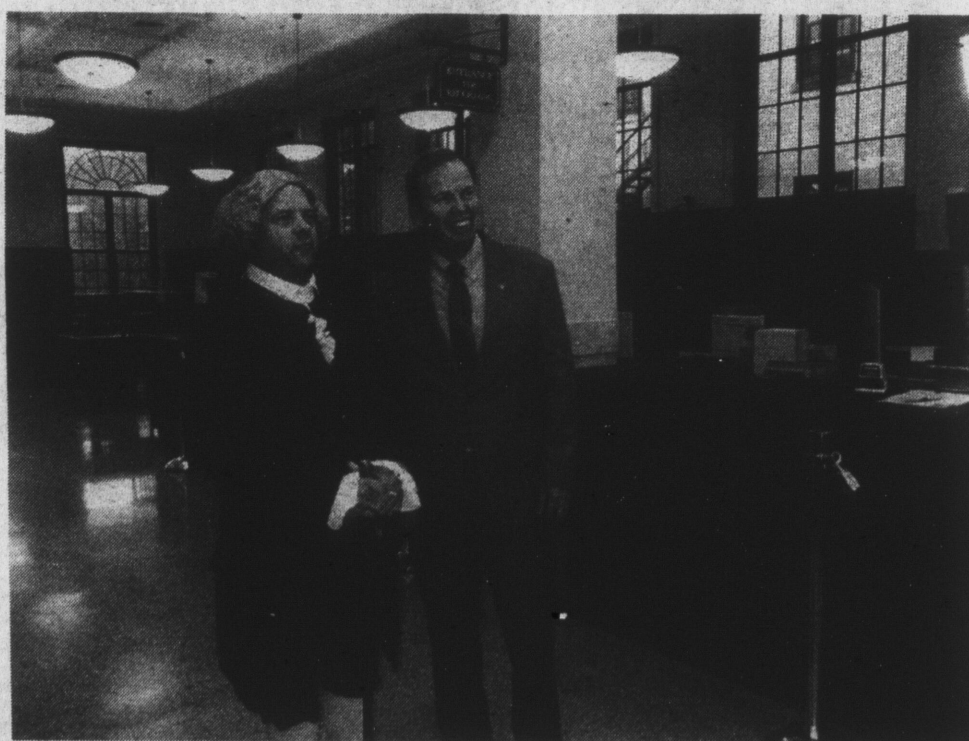

"We have done our best to preserve and improve the Registry of Deeds building including repairs to the granite outside edifice, a new roof, a new boiler, repaired ceilings and moldings, new wiring, more research space as well as interior painting," he said. "These renovations will allow Registry of Deeds staff to better serve the public and act on its core mission of recording and maintaining Norfolk County land documents in a secure, accurate and accessible manner."

During the rededication event, attendees were able to stroll throughout the building and view the many notable land record exhibits. A land record of an extraordinary individual from each of the 28 Norfolk County communities was highlighted for viewing.

"The Norfolk County notable land record holders highlighted in our Volume 2 book are truly a diverse group that has made contributions both locally and nationally. Among those highlighted included noted conductor Leonard Bernstein, former White House chief-of-staff Andrew Card, Jr. and Olympic gymnast Aly Raisman," O'Donnell said.

Those who attended were also treated to the singing of the Norwood High School Madrigals. Attendees also received a Notable Land Records Volume 2 book as well as getting a chance to talk to Mike LePage who portrayed President John Adams, one of four U.S. presidents who were born and lived in Nor-

"The rededication of the Registry of Deeds building reflects the commitment made to preserve this historic building built in 1903 by the citizens of Norfolk County," O'Donnell said. "By preserving this historic building and highlighting a notable land record holder in each of the twenty-eight Norfolk County communities, we are striving to make our county's rich history come alive. As proud as we are of the past and the present, we are also excited about what the future holds for the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds."

Council Clears Path For Self-Storage Facility

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors have cleared the way for a proposed new self-storage facility that would be located on part of the Home Depot site in South Quincy.

The Planning Board must still approve of the project before construction of the new building can commence. The board held a hearing on the plan in September and is scheduled to take up the matter again on Nov. 13.

RJ Kelly Company of Burlington has proposed constructing the four-story self-storage building, which would include 1,280 units, at 465-480 Centre Street – the section of Home Depot's parking lot closest to the Quincy Adams MBTA station. The site includes 149,000 square feet of land in an Industrial A zoning district. The developer has proposed including 25 parking spaces on site, plus four loading bays for its customers.

The self-storage facility would operate under the Stor-U-Self brand, which is a subsidiary of RJ Kelly. The company owns 35 Stor-U-Self facilities in Massachusetts, Connecticut and

New Hampshire. Those locations include more than 20,000 individual storage units.

Councillors on Oct. 7 were asked to amend the 2001 special permit granted to Home Depot to allow development of the parking lot in question, by reducing the number of parking spaces the home improvement store is required to have on site. Councillors approved doing so in an 8-0 vote; Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain was not present that night.

Gareth Orsmond, the applicant's attorney, said the 2001 special permit required Home Depot have some 585 parking spaces on site. The city's zoning code requires a store of Home Depot's size, 136,000 square feet, in an Industrial A area to have 272 spaces on site, Orsmond said.

The section of the parking lot on which the new self-storage facility would be built includes 188 spaces, leaving Home Depot with nearly 400 spaces, including 30 used seasonally, Orsmond said, well above the number required in the zoning ordinance.

"Home Depot will have well over 100 more spaces than are required under the existing zoning bylaw and they feel that is more than sufficient to satisfy their needs for parking," he said.

The Home Depot store would remain in compliance with all other aspects of the city's zoning code after the loss of the 3.42-acre area to make way for the new storage facility, Orsmond added.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, whose district includes the Centre Street site, said he would support the proposal. Palmucci hosted a community meeting on the plan this summer and said constituents he has heard from support the idea.

"The general sentiment from anybody I have talked to who have raised this issue with me or lives in the neighborhood, is that 'thank God it's not residential,'" he said. "Self-storage doesn't knock my socks off, it's not exciting, but it's a Home Depot parking lot – also not exciting."

Palmucci also noted Home Depot would remain in compliance with the parking requirements in the zoning code, the development would provide new growth for the city's tax base, and the home improvement store's customers would be unable to park in a residential area if there were not enough parking spaces on site.

"If they are wrong about needing the parking spaces, there is no particular neighborhood – or any neighborhood at all – that it's going to bear the brunt of the mistake of that decision by having people parking illegally," Palmucci said.

Councillor Nina Liang

said it was important to add commercial development in the city.

"This is going to be a large-scale commercial development, so I am excited for that," she said.

Councillor Anne Mahoney said a different use on site, such as residential, would have negative impact on traffic in the vicinity.

"That would add to the traffic congestion over there," she said.

The public had the chance to comment on the proposal during the council meeting. One person, John Rodophele of Taunton, did so, saying he supported the plan because it would generate new tax revenue.

"This will be a storage facility that will collect property taxes for next 20, 30 years, so we can fix the roads, fix the sidewalks and we can give money to the schools," he said. "This is the new growth that we need."

Keeping your individuality in a healthy relationship

When in relationships, we start to view ourselves as a unit. It can be comforting to be a part of a team, and to go through our daily life with a partner at our side. It is important to remember, however, that we are still our own person. We have our own values, goals, likes, and dislikes. When we are in a long-term relationship, ideally, some of these traits match up with our partners' traits. You may share a mutual dream to have children, or both value traveling. But not every one of your goals, dreams and desires has to match your partners'. If you love dancing, and your partner is more of a wallflower, they should encourage you to enjoy this passion. Go out dancing with friends, or take a salsa class – your partner should be happy to see you happy, not jealous or resentful that they are not a part of it. Similarly, if you partner has always dreamed of hiking the Appalachian, support them in reaching their goal, even if you don't hike alongside them. A healthy partner will encourage you to be the best and happiest you can be, individually, and together.

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month
 ...because Love Shouldn't Love Hurt

On Wednesday, Oct. 9, members of the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit (DCU) conducting surveillance on Pond Street due to complaints of drug activity.

The unit was focused on a particular male who is well known as a low level drug dealer and a cocaine abuser (crack). He has been involved in numerous past investigations where crack and/or cocaine were recovered from him. Numerous residents complained of drug activity, namely after 4 p.m., and suspect vehicle information was provided to the DCU. Residents added that "The hallway smells like burning plastic." (Believed to be crack cocaine).

At approximately 6:40 p.m., Detective O'Rourke observed a male suspect leave his apartment and walk to a nearby convenience store, where he met up with an unknown male and female. They then walked back to the apartment and after ten minutes, the male exited and returned to the store. The suspect and the female remained in the residence. It is believed that a buy was conducted and that the suspect brought the couple back to his apartment for the sale.

At 7:12 p.m., Detectives Donovan and O'Brien observed a Ford pull into the rear parking area of 39 Pond St. Detectives observed a male driver wearing an orange top and baseball style hat and a blonde female (passenger) walk into the building via the back door. Detective Bossart queried the registration and found it to be a rental from a small company that has rented to other drug sellers in the area. Drug dealers use these vehicles so they can conceal their identities and criminal histories from law enforcement.

Upon running the query, it showed that the vehicle had been run by Newton Police Officers the prior evening (Oct. 8 at 5:59 p.m.). Detective Donovan contacted the Newton officer who said his department conducted a prostitution investigation and the vehicle in question arrived at the meet location after an undercover officer arranged a "date" at the hotel. It was observed to be operated by a male, with a female in the front passenger's seat and another in the back seat.

The Newton officer stated the vehicle circled the lot and they believe the parties in question detected a police presence and fled. Surveillance was then terminated.

At this time members of the DCU believed the occupants of the Ford to be a male well known to the Quincy Police Department for distribution of cocaine and heroin/fentanyl as well as prostitution. Drug unit detectives had also seen this male and female at the same Pond Street residence in a rental vehicle and leave after a brief stay. In a previous investigation the same male had been observed numerous times (at various hours) visiting the Pond Street address for short stays in what members of the DCU believed to be drug related activity. The DCU knows that the male suspect travels in vehicles with drugs on his person, specifically in his crotch/buttocks area. The DCU has conducted controlled purchases of crack cocaine from the suspect in the past. The Boston Police classifies the suspect as a gang member and known to be involved in firearm related violence.

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

Within two minutes of the suspect's arrival, the unidentified female exited at Pond Street. Detective Glennon followed her as she walked at a brisk pace while talking on her phone. She was followed until she approached a pickup truck with two men in it in the lot of 157 Washington St. The three then walked across the street to the rooming house on Elm Street, known to house substance abusers. Earlier this summer the DCU recovered cocaine from a resident there after observing a drug transaction.

At this time all detectives involved in the investigation believed that the unknown female purchased drugs in the Pond Street apartment. These observations were relayed to the surveillance team.

At approximately 7:40 p.m., Detective O'Rourke observed a Toyota park in front of the Pond Street apartment. This vehicle had a male operator, a male front seat passenger and a female seated in the rear passenger's side. The female walked up to the front door and stood there on her cellphone. Moments later she was let in and in less than one minutes, she got back into the Toyota. The decision was made to stop the Toyota to further investigate.

Detectives O'Rourke, Bossart, K9 Officer Dabilis and Glennon followed the vehicle from the area. At a red light, with the vehicle stopped, the detectives approached the vehicle and identified themselves as police officers. The female who was at the front door of Pond Street was asked to step from the vehicle and advised of Miranda Warnings. During this time, Detective O'Rourke observed and retrieved three knotted plastic corner bags of crack cocaine from the rear seat where the female had been seated. The female was asked where she got the drugs and she confessed that she was driven to the Pond Street address and purchased the three bags for $100, using a $100 bill.

When asked how the deal was arranged, the female said she made a telephone call, placed the order and called to get into the apartment. Detective Glennon made note of the cell phone number she called. Detectives advised the vehicle's occupants that they would be summonsed to court.

Detective Glennon contacted Detective O'Brien to inform him of the recovery of the crack cocaine. Minutes later the dealer exited the Pond Street apartment and was stopped by Detective Donovan who gave him his Miranda Warnings to which he stated he understood. Upon being told crack cocaine had been recovered from the female, he denied being involved although he identified the male who was wearing an orange sweatshirt and a baseball hat as the dealer. This description and time frame matches the occupants of the Ford observed entering the lot at 7:12 p.m. He admitted to being in the hall and witnessing the deal, adding that the male comes by frequently and that people stop in when he is on the premises.

At this time all members of the Drug Unit believed that the occupants of the Ford were involved in a conspiracy to distribute crack cocaine. This male was informed he would be summonsed for distribution of Class B drug as well as conspiracy and sent on his way. At this time a decision was made to effect an arrest of the suspects in the Ford for distribution of Class B as well as conspiracy.

At 7:54 p.m., these suspects exited the apartment and got into the Ford. Detectives used their vehicles to block in the suspects and then remove them from their vehicle. After being told of the charges, the driver began a tirade, yelling and swearing about the incident and accused the Detectives of harassment. His tirade escalated and became so loud that numerous residents came to their windows to view the spectacle as it unfolded. He was advised numerous times to calm down to no avail.

Detective Bossart performed a search of this suspect and recovered three folds of currency, with a total of $1,160 on his person. The second suspect was led from the vehicle, placed into handcuffs and advised of the charges as well. She was found to have $70 in her front sweatshirt pocket as well as $198 in a wristlet for a total of $268. Recovered

Fundraiser Oct. 23 Honors Those Who Have Died From Opioid Addiction

Organizations Who Fight For Recovery To Be Recognized

By ROBBIE

D'ALLESSANDRO

Port 305 in Quincy is hosting The Damage Done: a fundraiser honoring those who have died from opioid addiction and the organizations who continue to fight for recovery, on Wednesday,

Oct. 23, at 6:30 p.m.

The Damage Done fundraiser is set apart from others in that a live performance will be held honoring the memory of those who have died from opioid overdose. After a year of interviews conducted with parents who lost two of their three children to heroin overdose, playwright Robbi D'Allessandro brings their story to life in a short series of monologues depicting their loss.

"If art can be used to evoke social change, bringing it to the frontlines of the fundraising process is essential," D'Allessandro states. "There is nothing more poignant than bringing the faces and stories of personal struggle to the cause."

The plight of the opioid crisis rages on locally as Massachusetts continues to be ranked among the top ten states with the highest death toll associated with opioids. State and local non-profits continue to fight the good fight in championing recovery, but resources prove to be scarce as funding is channeled elsewhere.

The fundraiser will benefit three non-profits, The Gavin Foundation, The Wounded Warrior Project and PAACA (Positive Action Against Chemical Addiction).

The Gavin Foundation is a non-profit foundation that serves over 5,000 individuals throughout Massachusetts each year. The foundation operates several treatment centers in the greater Boston area, and continues to work with local and state officials in finding new strategies aiding in recovery.

Born out of a basement in St. Anne's Rectory in New Bedford, PAACA, (Positive Action Against Chemical Addiction), has grown to service the addicted throughout Massachusetts. The agency has recently added youth development programs, employment and training, housing, and education and support programs.

In the state of Massachusetts alone, The Wounded

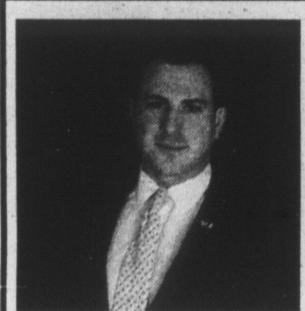

Warrior Project has helped over 1,437 warriors and helped 327 family support members. They are sincere in helping those veterans who struggle with chemical dependency.

This waterfront event provides an autumn tasting menu, a silent auction, and a live performance.

Venture Crew 42 Selling Pumpkins At Tower Automotive Saturday

Venture Crew 42 will be out selling pumpkins Saturday, Oct. 19 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Tower Automotive, 570 Adams St., Quincy.

Stop by and learn more about the Venturing program, meet some Venturers, hear about their adventures, enjoy a cup of hot cider or a donut, and pick up a pumpkin. Prices will vary from $5 to $25 depending on the size of the pumpkin.

Venturing is an inclusive program through the Boy Scouts of America for males and females aged 14-21 (or 13 and completed the 8th grade). Sales of pumpkins, flowers and wreaths throughout the year help fund our programs like white water rafting, various backpacking trips, canoe trips, summer camp, and much more.

The Venturing program aims to enable young adults to: experience a program that is fun and full of challenge and adventure, become a skilled training and program resource for other youth groups, experience positive leadership from adult and youth leaders and be given opportunities to take on leadership roles, learn to make ethical choices throughout their lives by instilling the values of the Scout Oath and Law, and have a chance to learn and grow in a supportive, caring, and fun environment.

By TOM JOYCE

Although the rivalry is friendly, the matches are still highly competitive between the Quincy and North Quincy High boys' golf teams.

The Presidents hosted the Red Raiders at the Furnace Brook Golf Club in the city on Oct. 8 in a match where both teams had their share of sharp performances. Ultimately, it was the Presidents who got the better of the match, winning it 276-281. With the win, the Presidents improved to 3-13 on the season while the Red Raiders fell to 1-15.

"It's the Quincy-North Quincy rivalry where I feel like it's anyone's game until the end," Presidents' head coach Joseph Salvucci said. "You can't count anyone else because it can change. I think the kids get a little extra fired up about it, and I think the intensity and nerves are up."

Presidents' senior captain Ryan Quirk had the low score of the match, shooting a 39 as he helped his team to victory. After him, junior captain Andrew Peterson had the second-lowest score for the team, shooting a 45 on the day; sophomore Sean Andrews and senior captain Riley O'Connor finished one stroke behind at 46 on the day.

"When you get a couple of guys going low like that, it makes a huge difference in the match," Salvucci said. "You need to have at least a couple who put some good scores on the board."

For the Red Raiders, senior captain Peyton McGaffigan had the low score on the day, shooting a 41 overall. Junior captain Tom Roche and fellow senior captain Dylan Connors tied for the second-lowest score on the team, both shooting 45s in the match.

"I'm extremely proud of my guys," Red Raiders' head coach Bob Doyle said. "It's been a tough year in terms of wins and losses, but whenever Quincy and North play, it's always going to come right down to the wire. It was Quincy's game today, but I'm very happy with the effort these guys gave."

Amongst the golfers on the two schools in the city, there is no animosity even as both teams work hard in hopes of beating one another.

"It's a good time," Quirk of Quincy said. "Good competition out there. It's nice getting everyone together. It makes for a good day."

"It's always fun when the city comes together," Connors of North Quincy added. "We had a nice, competitive match. In the end, it's all for fun."

When speaking about the strengths of their teams this season, both coaches said they have been impressed by their players attitudes all fall.

"Within our league, we've struggled a bit, but the attitude has always been there," Salvucci said. "Our mentality is if you're going into a match and you don't think you have a chance, there's no point in showing up. You've always got to grind it out like you have a chance to win."

"We're coming up shy as far as wins go, but they keep showing up and working hard for me," Doyle added. "There's been steady improvement throughout the year. We've got some young guys, including a couple freshmen who got the opportunity to play and hopefully through hard work and with Coach Salvucci - who I can't say enough good things about - building up the middle school program, hopefully we'll have more bodies in the future. We're hoping that more seventh and eighth graders take up the sport of golf. It's a great game and we want to help guys improve."

On both sides, much of the focus of where the teams have been trying to improve is their short game. For the Presidents, this is especially vital given the unconventional, hilly landscape of Furnace Brook Golf Club. As Salvucci pointed out, it's a course where the driver is not as necessary as it is in some places - which puts them at an advantage when hosting teams.

When speaking of the importance of the short game, Doyle said, "Three or four put greens aren't going to get it done, so I think the extra commitment at practice this season, although it hasn't translated to victories, I think they see the big picture and it's helping us improve as a program."

The team captains also noted that as leaders of their team, they are happy to be able to help their younger peers continue improving their games.

"There's always some young freshmen on the team and you want to help them out," McGaffigan of North Quincy said. "Even if they're not the best players, you want to help them get better every year."

"We're trying to show them how fun golf is and help them make the program as good as possible," Peterson of Quincy added.

New Practice Nets Dedicated In Memory Of Steven V. Barrett

The Quincy High School Golf team along with efforts from donors including Home Depot, Quincy Housing Authority, Quincy Parks Department, Granite Links, and The Scribi Family, has constructed a two bay practice golf net at Forbes Hill.

The effort was headed by assistant coach Mike Healy who got the proposal to the Quincy Parks Department and managed the project. Thanks to the support of Executive Director of Parks and Forestry Dave Murphy, the project was approved and construction began in April.

During Memorial Day weekend as construction was nearing completion the project was vandalized and destroyed. As disappointed parents and supporters voiced their frustration, Dave Cerone of the Quincy Housing Authority caught word and took action.

Cerone, with the backing of Executive Director of Quincy Housing Authority James Marathas, donated the materials and construction of a new frame that was bigger and stronger than the previous.

"It's been a team effort from our community and supporters and we believe the net is a symbol of teamwork and perseverance," said Quincy golf coach Joe Salvucci. "There are a lot of good people in this city who are willing to help each other out and we are so grateful for their generosity."

On Oct. 8th during the North Quincy vs. Quincy golf match at Furnace Brook, the practice nets were dedicated to the Steven V. Barrett Memorial. The Steven V. Barrett Memorial scholarship has been presented to 17 QHS golfers attending a college since 1999, one of which included coach Salvucci in 2004.

"It was an honor to recognize the Barrett Family and the Memorial foundation for all they have done for Quincy High School Golf over the past 20 years and we are so pleased to be able to help Steven's memory live on," Salvucci said.

NQ Improves To 2-3 With 28-0 Win Over Pembroke

By TOM JOYCE

Put a Patriot League win on the board for the North Quincy High football team.

The Red Raiders hosted the rebuilding Pembroke Titans last Saturday at Veterans' Memorial Stadium and had their best offensive performance of the season.

The Red Raiders scored their first touchdown in three games on their way to a 28-0 victory. With the win, the Red Raiders' first in Patriot League play this season, NQ improved to 2-3 on the season. Meanwhile, Pembroke fell to 1-5 on the season with the loss.

"Pembroke is a good football team," Red Raiders head coach Ryan Craig said. "They're down in numbers, but they came out and fought hard. We have a lot of respect for them."

"On defense, we've got a lot of kids who can make some plays and we've got a lot of young kids," he added. "At the beginning of the season, there were a lot of question marks but now, we're gelling together and really coming together as a team. We're just looking to get better every week."

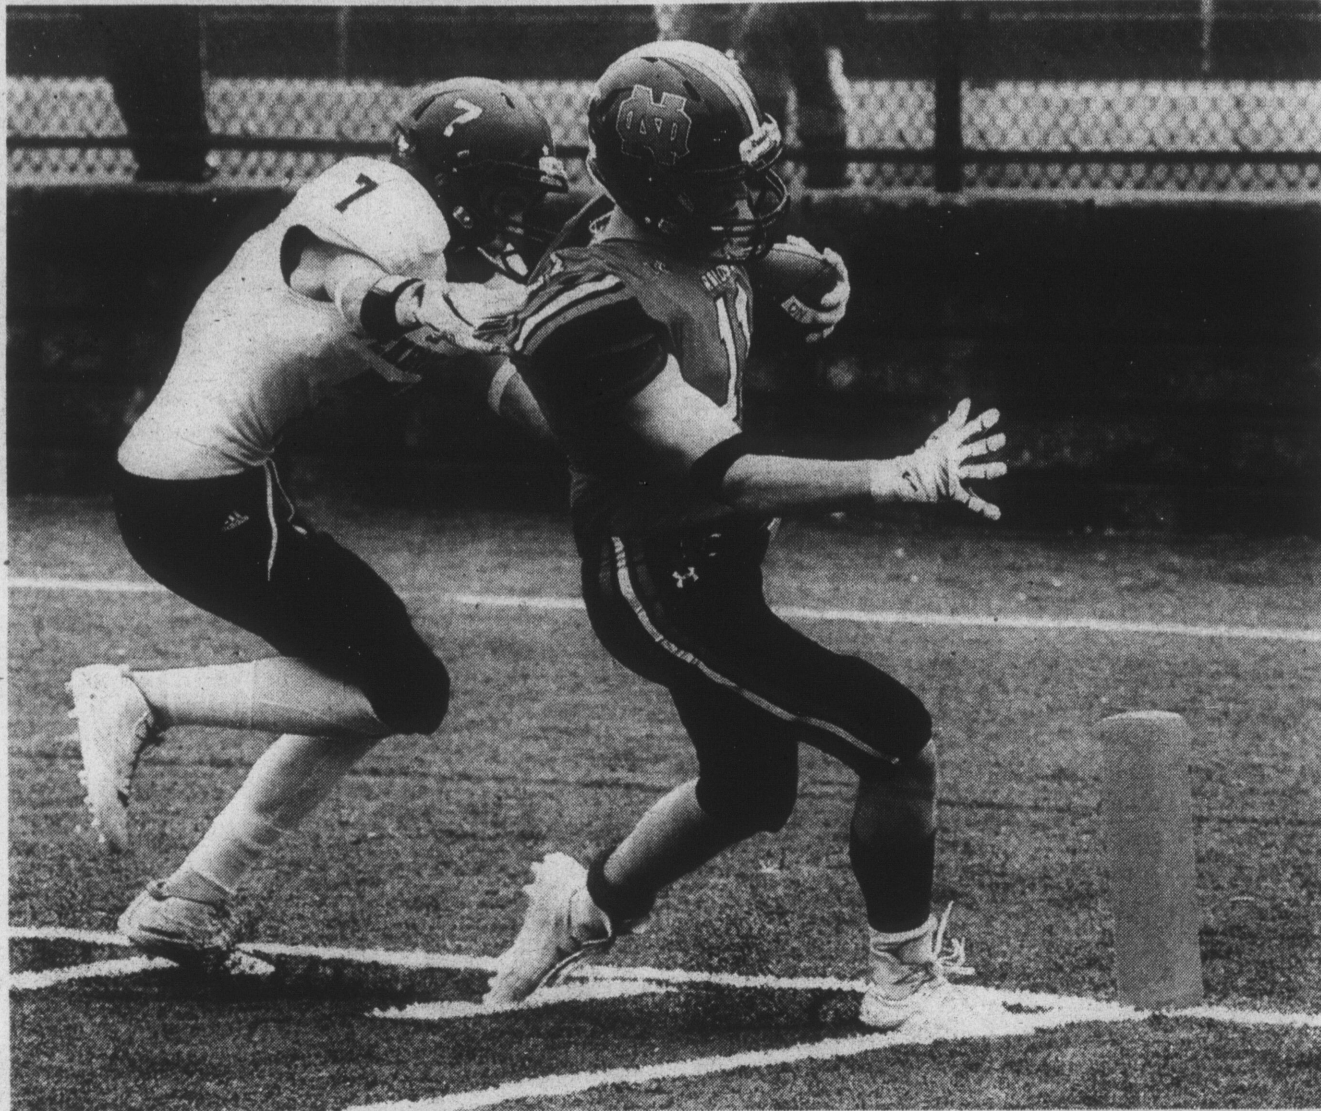

Pembroke started off the game with offensive struggles; the Red Raiders forced a punt after their foe went negative 10 yards on their first three offensive plays. However, on the second play of the Red Raiders' first drive, sophomore quarterback Cooper Hansen threw an interception, giving the ball back to Pembroke.

Pembroke could not get anything done on their next drive, nor could the Red Raiders. But a muffed punt catch led to a recovery by junior Jamal Maximilien which gave the team the ball on Pembroke's 25-yard line and a real scoring chance.

The Red Raiders opted to give the ball to Liam Hines on four straight plays—two traps and two tosses. It was the second toss to the weak side which resulted in an 11-yard touchdown run with 41 seconds left in the first quarter. Thomas Murray's extra point kick was successful, so the Red Raiders led 7-0.

When Pembroke got the ball back, the Red Raiders' defensive line put pressure on them. Mike Levine had a three yard tackle for a loss on the Pembroke quarterback on a draw. Colm Geary forced an incompletion with a hurry on a draw. And Pembroke's pocket collapsed on third down, allowing linebacker Matt Craig to get the sack—forcing fourth and long and a punt.

JUNIOR RUNNING BACK Liam Hines scores the first of his three touchdowns on an 11-yard run in the first quarter to help spark North Quincy over Pembroke 28-0 Saturday at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. The Red Raiders improved to 2-3 on the season and will visit the 4-1 Plymouth South Panthers Friday night at 7 p.m.

The Red Raiders capitalized on this chance on a drive capped off by a 16-yard touchdown run on a counter by Murray. His extra point attempt was good, putting the team up 14-0 with 5:50 left in the first half. The

Presidents Bow To Stout Plymouth South Defense

By TOM JOYCE

Last Friday night, the Quincy High football team ran into a serious challenge: facing one of the top defenses on the South Shore.

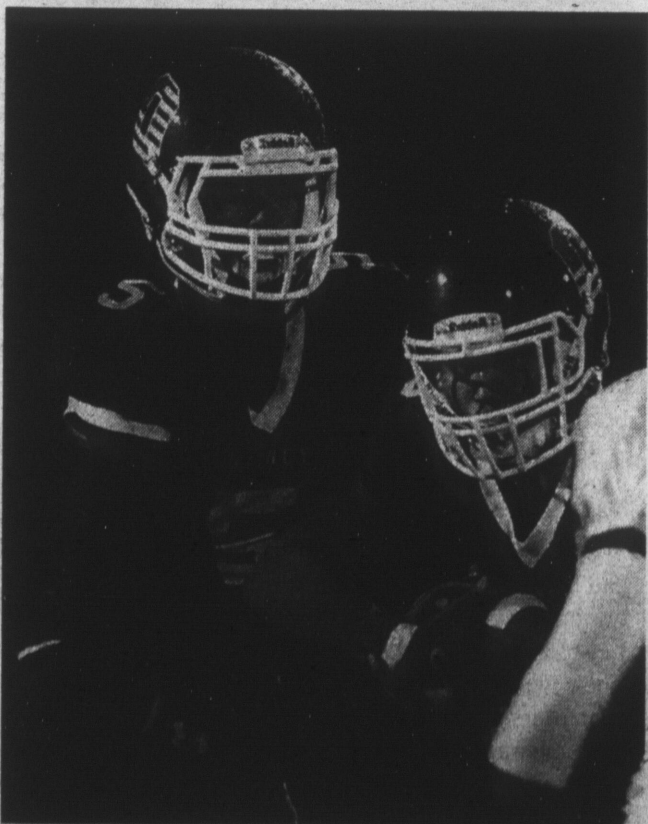

The Presidents hosted the Plymouth South Panthers, a team which had allowed just 42 points over its first four games of the season (10.5 points per game). Coming off a week where the team scored a season-high four touchdowns in a contest against Pembroke, the Presidents were not as fortunate in the scoring department this time around. They fell 20-0 and moved to 1-4 on the season with the loss. With the win, Plymouth South is now 4-1 this season.

"It was a fight and I'm very impressed," Presidents head coach Kevin Carey said. "Plymouth South, they're in the driver's seat for the league title and it really showed. They got a quick one right before the first half. If we stop them there, it's a different game going into the half at 0-0."

"They're a quick explosive team," he added. "The rain and wind slow everything down, but I'm really

Red Raiders scoring drive was 61 yards, amassed on the ground and with one penalty for three yards.

Pembroke's offensive woes continued on the next drive when a Mike Gordon sack brought up fourth and 20. On their next drive, Pembroke got intercepted by Andrew Gott, who returned it 18 yards to Pembroke's 16 yard line. Hansen got intercepted in the end zone on third down, so the Red Raiders led 14-0 at halftime.

The Red Raiders slowed their pace on offense in the second half, eating the first seven minutes of clock on their opening touchdown drive. Hines scored on a two yard toss set up by a seven yard run by him. A successful PAT kick gave the team a 21-0 lead.

Hines also scored the next touchdown for the Red Raiders on a 50-yard pick six with 3:14 remaining. It came on a deep and wobbly pass attempt by Pembroke on third and long with their quarterback under heavy pressure. A good PAT kick made it 28-0 Red Raiders.

In the fourth quarter, the Red Raiders put in their second offense and made a handful of defensive substitutions as they cruised to victory.

The win marked the Red Raiders second shutout of the season; their first came in their 3-0 win over Archbishop Williams on September 27.

"We're gonna play defense no matter who we go up against," Craig said. "We're going to try to shut people down and do the best we can."

Craig said he was impressed by his team's play offensively, defensively and on special teams. He noted on kickoffs junior Sean Jackson stood out, laying down a pair of big hits on his kickoff tackles.

The Red Raiders next game will be played next Friday, Oct. 18 on the road against the 4-1 Plymouth South Panthers (7:00 p.m. start time).

"The biggest focus is to stay focused," Craig said. "You get a nice win like this but you have to keep it in perspective. We've got a tough game next week."

Record 2-4 overall 1-2 in Fisher Division

QNQ ran in a cross-over meet with Keenan Division host Hingham and guest Marshfield. QNQ lost both ends of the meet but ran much improved times over this meet a year ago.

Robert Cannon and Dakota Pendleton each raced 2 minutes faster than they did a year ago. Cannon, a sophomore, battled with three Marshfield runners and two Hingham runners and finished 5th, but his time of 16:02 was 2:03 faster than he raced a year ago. The Marshfield Rams have won several team invitationals this fall and Hingham is possibly the top boys team in the Patriot League. Braeden Kopp and Dakota Pendleton also ran much faster than a year ago placing in the top 20. All three broke 17 minutes on the course.

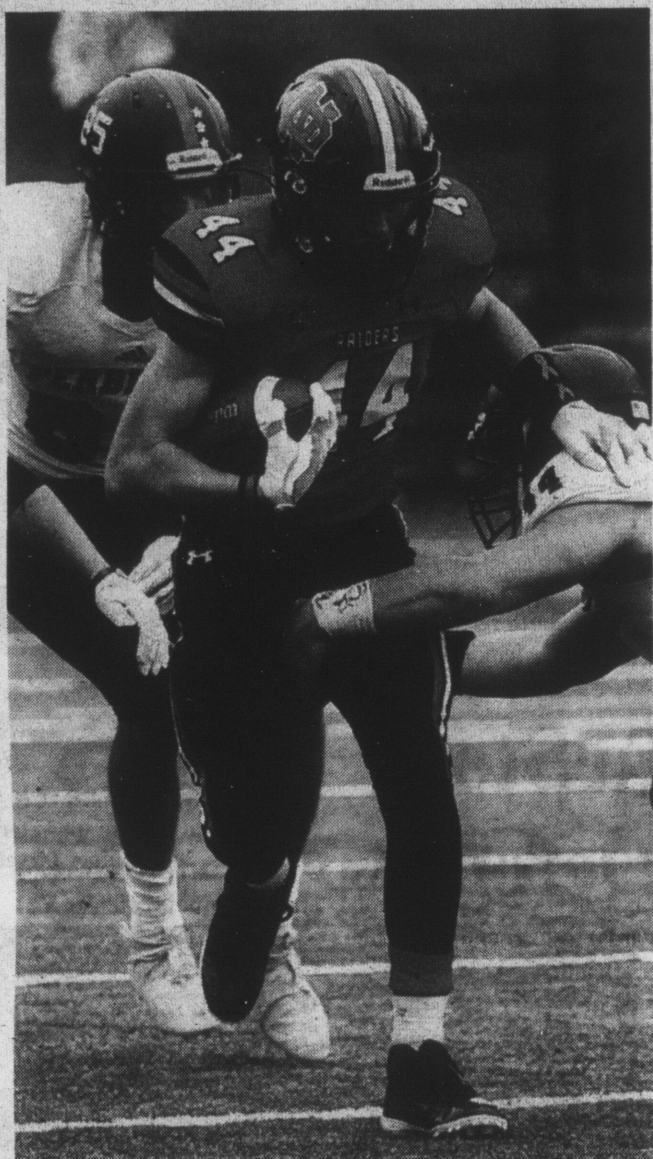

On the girls side Lezly Avecedo was under the weather but still ran under 20 minutes while teammate Maeve White ran her best race of the year with a 20:17 on the flat 2.98 mile course over the Hingham High School campus and playing fields. White was recovering from a hip injury and had to miss all of her summer training, but appears to be closing in on her career times from freshman year. She has been plagued with hip issues but is on the comeback trail.

Coach Geoff Hennessy sat down several top runners because the meet was against a Keenan Division opponent. A battle loomed Oct. 16 against division-leading Plymouth South. QNQ beat South's boys by a single point a year ago, and have been close to their girls but have not been victorious in four years. Marshfield is seeking entry into the Patriot League with the folding of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Their membership in the league will be voted on later this year. Marshfield will actually host the Patriot League Championship meet Oct. 26 at the Marshfield Fair grounds. While they will compete in the meet, they are not eligible to win awards or be selected all-stars this fall.

QNQ will also compete in the Catholic Memorial Invitational Saturday in Franklin Park.

proud of the way the guys played."

It took until the final minute of the first half for either team to score.

Initially, it appeared as though Plymouth South could score on their first possession, but the Presidents squandered their chance. Forced to punt after losing three yards on their first set of downs, the Presidents defense came up with some big stops once the Plymouth South got into the red zone.

Thomas Le set the tone and stopped that from happening, coming up with a tackle for a five yard loss to bring up second and long. Then, Matt Kelly held Plymouth South to a one yard gain and a botched pass attempt brought up fourth and long. This time, Plymouth South's quarterback threw the ball to the end zone, but right to junior defensive back Ciro Moura who made the interception with about three minutes left in the first quarter.

The Presidents had little success offensively in the first half, unable to pick up a first down. However, junior running back Isaiah Steinberg did have a 14-yard rush in the second quarter on third and long; the Presidents still ended up punting because it came on third and 22.

With 3:06 left in the first half, Plymouth South got the ball on their own 45 following a punt, and they capitalized on the chance. The team ended up scoring on a 19-yard touchdown pass with 16 seconds remaining in the first half as they wore down the Presidents with a mix of runs and passes.

Right before the touchdown, Plymouth South called a timeout to draw up their play. Their extra point kick was successful, so they led 7-0 at halftime.

"One of our preseason goals was to compete with these kinds of teams," Carey said. "I know the score doesn't show it, but I felt that we competed for three quarters. Obviously, I would've liked a three-and-out to start the second half, but we're coming along."

Plymouth South kept this offensive momentum going with them in the second half.

Plymouth South got the ball to start things off and this time, drove the ball downfield in a slow, methodical manner. Using 13 plays, primarily on the ground, they traveled 62 yards in 6:11 for their second touchdown of the game. The touchdown came on a 13-yard quarterback keeper following a Presidents off-sides penalty on third down to bring up a first down. The extra point was good, so Plymouth South led 14-0.

Quincy's next drive was a three and out with an incomplete pass, a two yard gain from Steinberg and a one yard run for junior quarterback Amarion Robinson.

Plymouth South got the ball back with 4:29 left in the third quarter and once again, a methodical drive took them to the end zone. Extending their drive about a minute into the fourth quarter, Plymouth South scored on a seven yard quarterback keeper; their extra point attempt was no good, so they led 20-0 early in the fourth quarter.

On the Presidents' final drive of the game, they did pick up a few first downs with Plymouth South playing a more conservative defense. However, they stalled out at the 37-yard line, giving the ball back to Plymouth South, who would hang onto the ball and run out the clock over the final four minutes of the game.

This week, the Presidents have a road game against Hanover Indians on Friday, Oct. 18 (7 p.m. start time).

Quincy Youth Football Week 6 Highlights

It was a great weekend for youth football action in Quincy as 6 Quincy teams were home facing teams from Walpole, Brockton and Newton, while North Quincy traveled to Walpole to take on the Rebels.

Quincy Youth Football, "Mites under the Lights," was held Saturday night, with Quincy's 2/3rd grade team and 4th grade teams playing night games at Creedon Field. At the 8th grade level, the Apaches and Jr Presidents both have 4-2 records as the Jr Presidents topped Braintree, and the Apaches fell to a tough Walpole team. The game of the weekend, however, was Quincy United 5th graders exciting overtime thriller, as they topped a very tough Newton team 32-26.

Grade 5 - Quincy United's 5th grade team put their unbeaten record on the line, as they faced the Newton Mustangs on Sunday. Quincy got on the board first when quarterback Ryan Sampson found Mecca Limage for a 45-yard touchdown pass, the conversion attempt failed, but Quincy had the early 6-0 lead. The Mustangs answered with a 26-yard touchdown and a successful conversion for the 7-6 lead in the first quarter.

In the second quarter, Quincy regained the lead when Sampson again passed to Limage for another Quincy score, and the conversion attempted increased Quincy's lead to 13-7. Again, Newton responded with another touchdown and conversion to take the 14-13 lead. Quincy's Patrick Conner raced 22 yards to the end zone, and Limage added the conversion to give Quincy the 20-14 halftime lead.

In the second half, Newton was able to tie it up, and take the lead as they scored 2 unanswered touchdowns and held a 26-20 advantage as the clock was winding down in the 4th. With 37 seconds to go, Quincy tied the game when Conner reached the end zone on an 18-yard run. In overtime, Quincy's swarming defense stopped Newton from reaching the end zone. On Quincy's 3rd play from scrimmage Conner scored the 1-yard touchdown to seal the 32-26 win for the undefeated Quincy United 5th graders (5-0). Up next for Quincy United 5th graders is the Milton Wildcats at Brooks Field on Sunday.

Grade 8 - The Quincy Jr Presidents took on the Wamps from Braintree on Sunday and cruised to a big win as the Jr Presidents put 32 points on the scoreboard in the first half to a big victory over Braintree. Quincy's powerful offense was led by the running of Gabe Rodrigues, 3 touchdowns (10, 15, & 30 yard runs). Quarterback John Toland, chipped in with nice passes to receiver Teddy Lynch, a punt return to Braintree's 28 yard line, and 2 rushing touchdowns (50 and 55 yards) to lead Quincy to the 32-0 halftime score.

Coaches praised the defensive line for an unbelievable effort against the Wamps. Gavin Reagan had 3 sacks, Frankie Walsh a sack, and Taylen Marquez and Brandon Toomer had big games on D line. Lynch, Kevin Gray and Josh Cannon had big games at their defensive back positions and held Braintree's offense at bay.

Running back and linebacker Jordan Mahoney played a strong game both ways as well as kicking extra points. Offensive line of Toomer, Reuben Santana, Marquez, Tayah Quinn, Reagan, Ryan Gomez did a great job blocking for the run and pass. Toland had another big game running and completing passes to WR Teddy Lynch. Overall, a great team effort and big win for the Junior Presidents who improved their record to 4-2. The Jr Presidents will face a tough test next as they visit Natick on Saturday.

The North Quincy Apaches travelled to Walpole to take on the Rebels 8th grade team. The Apaches played tough in the first half and matched the Rebels as Ben Hudach had a 50-yard touchdown for North Quincy and the teams were tied 6-6 at halftime. The second half did not go as well for North Quincy as they could not keep pace with the strong Walpole offense. Enhea Panariti scored 2 touchdowns for the Apaches, but Walpole put 32 more points on the scoreboard to claim the victory 38-20 over the Apaches. Playing well for the Apaches were Mikey Campbell, Charile Am-broult and Ben Walinjom. The Apaches (4-2) will face Needham next week.

Grade 7 - Quincy United 7th graders hosted the Walpole Rebels in a battle for playoff rights. Quincy opened with a 70 yard offensive drive that ended when full back Tom Chan scored on an eight yard touchdown run. Quincy quarterback Michael Galligan found Tyler Cromwell just before halftime for an 80 yard touchdown pass. Walpole answered with a touchdown and Quincy was down 14 to 12 at halftime.

New Headstone For World War II Soldier

1944. He was assigned to Kessler Field in Mississippi and graduated from the Boeing aircraft factory school, where he specialized on the B-29.

Pearce was discharged on Oct. 5, 1945, and re-enlisted in the regular Army the same day. He was assigned at first to Grand Island, Nebraska, and from there went to Roswell, New Mexico, where served during an atomic bomb test. He was then sent to Bikini Atoll during Operation Crossroads, a series of atomic bomb tests. After returning to the U.S., Pearce was assigned to Grand Island and was set to take part in the Alaska "frigid test."

Pearce was one of 11 crew members killed when the B-29 in which they were flying crashed into Battle Mountain, Nevada, on Oct. 1, 1946, during a routine flight from Nebraska to Sacramento. Pearce was the ground crew chief aboard the plane.

He was 20 years old at the time of his death.

Pearce, who resided at 74

Walnut St. in North Quincy, was buried in Mount Wollaston Cemetery. He was interred alongside other family members, with a simple marker to denote his final resting place.

That changed when Quincy's graves registration officer, George Bouchard, and Linda Perchard, a volunteer and member of the city's the Cemetery Board of Managers, began researching veterans' graves inside the cemetery.

As Perchard was compiling information on each veteran interred at the cemetery, she learned there was no headstone to mark Pearce's grave.

"We were doing a folder on each veteran," she said in a phone interview. "When I came to him...I found out he didn't have a headstone."

Perchard then put together a packet of information on Pearce, Bouchard said. He submitted that information as part of an application to the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs for a new headstone honoring Pearce.

The VA delivered the new headstone five weeks later,

WORKERS install the new gravestone for Arthur F. Pearce at Mount Wollaston Cemetery. Pearce, who lived in North Quincy, was killed in a 1946 plane crash in Nevada. He was one of 11 crewmembers aboard the B-29 Superfortress killed in the crash. Pearce had previously been assigned to atomic bomb tests in New Mexico and Bikini Atoll.

and it was put into place on Oct. 1, 73 years to the day after was Pearce was killed in the plane crash. Bouchard said the cemetery workers who installed the headstone understood its significance.

"They were very professional," Bouchard said.

"They took to heart what he meant to the country."

Earlier this year, the city was able to replace 18 headstones marking the graves of Civil War veterans that had become unreadable over the past century after Perchard and Bouchard applied to the same VA program. Those headstones, which are located near the veterans' lot at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, were replaced in the lead up to Memorial Day.

Bouchard and Perchard hope to identify additional headstones at Mount Wollaston that are eligible for replacement through the VA program.

"Linda and I are doing the entire cemetery," Bouchard said. "If the headstone is not readable, we can take it replaced."

$3.5 Million Sought For Seawalls, Flood Control in higher than expected this summer, however, and Koch proposed a $17.82 million bond to cover the costs of the projects on Sept. 16. Councillors could not approve the full amount at that time because of advertising requirements; they instead opted to pass the original $14.32 million bond in a unanimous vote.

The $3.5 million bond introduced Oct. 7 covers the difference between the $14.32 million bond approved in September and the $17.82 million cost for the seawall and other projects.

The city has applied for up to $10 million in federal and state grants to offset the cost of the seawall and flood control projects.

Work to replace the seawall between Chickatabot Road and Babcock Street is set to begin March 1. Most of the new seawall will be constructed two feet higher than the barrier it is replacing; the seawall in the area of Terne Road and Norton Beach will be built four feet higher.

The seawall replacement is expected to take nine months.

The drainage improvement projects include hydraulics analysis of the Terne Road, Post Island Road and Bayswater Road areas. Those studies will begin once funding is in place and take three months. It could take up to two years to design, permit and construct the new, stormwater pumping station in the area of Post Island Road.

The study of the Willows Marsh drainage system is also set to begin this fall, with draft findings ready in the spring of 2020. The city and Army Corps of Engineers will split the $240,000 cost for the study.

The city also plans to replace the seawall between Babcock Street and Bayswater Road. The project, which would be funded separately, remains in the design phase.

"We appreciate all of the time, efforts, and talent that go into keeping our city beautiful," said Commissioner of Natural Resources Dave Murphy. "This list represents just a sample of the great community we have here in Quincy. I applaud not only our winners but all residents who take the time to keep their properties looking neat, clean, and beautiful."

Murphy made special mention of Will Porter of Elm Avenue and his efforts to mow grass along the loam border up and down Elm Avenue. He encouraged all residents to include the grass border along the sidewalk in their maintenance and upkeep efforts.

The Neat Neighbors contest was initiated by Mayor Koch back in the late 1990s when he served as the executive director of Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments. The purpose was to recognize residents that take pride in property maintenance. It also hopes to encourage folks to participate in property beautification.

Quincy Youth Football Week 6 Highlights

In the second half Galligan found wide receiver Alex Martinez for two touchdown passes of 65 and 58 yards. But, Walpole's offense was just too strong for Quincy's defense to contain and the Rebels edged Quincy, 27 to 25 for the Walpole victory. The game came down to the final seconds as Galligan's Hail Mary pass fell incomplete as time expired. Galligan finished the day 11 of 16 for 273 yards passing. Quincy Head Coach Mike Flavin said of Galligan's performance, "Mikey played a great game today on both sides of the ball. He made some big plays for us. He is a super athlete. Unfortunately we came up short today. Walpole just made a few more plays than we did."

Flavin also had high praise for Anthony Melchione, Phil Le, Sean Szilva, Nate Goff, John Jordon and Cameron Sampson. Quincy United remains in the playoff hunt, as they will travel to play Needham Sunday.

Grade 6 - Walpole scored 2 first quarter touchdowns to race to an early 12-0 lead before Quincy United 6th grade team could find the end zone. Walpole added another touchdown for an 18-7 halftime lead over Quincy. The Rebels would add 3 more touchdowns in the second half, while Quincy was only able to score one more, and Walpole downed Quincy United 6th grade, 32-13.

Quincy United 6th grade team will play the Wildcats at Milton on Sunday.

Grade 4 - The Quincy United 4th graders met the Walpole Rebels Saturday night at Creedon Field, and played a tough game, but the Walpole team was too much and Quincy fell to the Rebels. Quincy's defense was led by Jake Campbell who recorded 3 sacks and 15 tackles.

On the offensive side of the ball, Cash Murphy led Quincy's ground attack.

Also playing well for Quincy was Cole Maciasiac and Bryson Carey. Quincy's 4th grade team will face Wellesley next weekend.

Grade 2/3 - The Quincy United Grade 2/3 remained undefeated as they topped Brockton under the lights at Creedon. Quincy's offense got rolling early led by 2 first half touchdowns run by Trevor Gardner of 30 and 15 yards.

Mike Boyle caught a 3-yard touchdown pass in the 3rd quarter to increase Quincy's lead to 18-0. Later in the 4th quarter, Logan Mann also scored on a 20 yard touchdown catch for Quincy United, and seal the 24-0 shutout over the Brockton Raiders.

On defense, Quincy got strong games from "3J" Limage who made a huge tackle to save a long touchdown run by Brockton. Also contributing on defense were Mike Cheever, Martin Panariti, Shane Vey, Jimmy Rheault and JJ Daigault.

CANDLES ARE HELD as pictures of those lost to addiction are displayed during the candlelight vigil.

City Remembers Those Lost To Addiction

being appointed as the city's substance prevention coordinator.

"In the beginning, I would ask to be excused from having a role in events like this," she said.

Martin said the vigil brings a unity of community strength and explained that different colored balloons in the foyer represent the three reasons for the ceremony: white balloons represent loss, purple signifies recovery, and green offers hope.

"For whatever reason you are here today, just look around and know that you are not alone," she said.

This year's event was scheduled to be held at the Hancock-Adams Common but rain forced it inside the Quincy High School auditorium. In addition to Koch, several local and state officials also were in attendance including Rep. Tackey Chan, Sen. John Keenan, Norfolk Sheriff Jerry McDermott, Norfolk District Attorney Michael Morrissey, school committee member Anthony Andronico, and city councillors David McCarthy and Anne Mahoney.

Koch formed the Substance Abuse Task Force in 2008 that is comprised of local, state, and private agencies and organizations. It promotes education, awareness, prevention, and treatment of substance addiction.

Quincy's Life Community Church members Kami Cross and Matt Bramlett performed inspirational songs mixed with readings from several individuals who are struggling, in recovery, and suffered the loss of a loved one.

Natalie Cotta read a poem, "When Tomorrow Starts without Me."

"I had so much to live for and so much yet to do, it seemed almost impossible I was leaving you," she read. "So when tomorrow starts without me, do not think we're apart, for every time you think of me, remember I'm right here in your heart."

"Jimmy" recited, "The Legacy."

"Love doesn't die, people do," he said. "So, all that is left for me is love."

Jenn Young read, "If Love Could Only..."

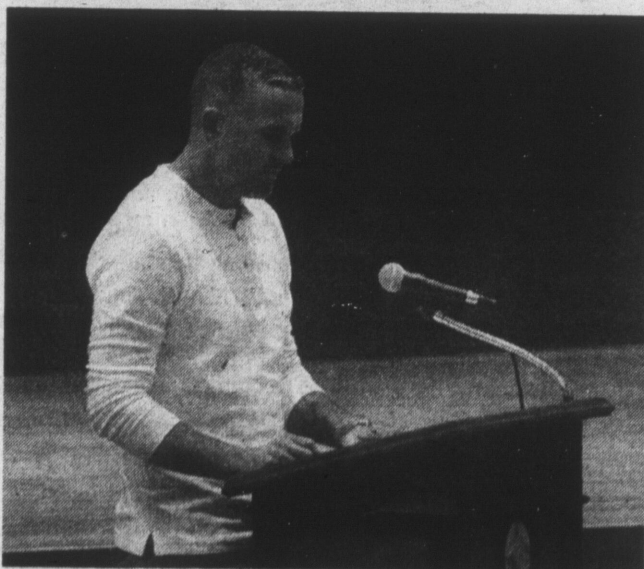

"A million times I needed you, a million times I cried, if love alone could save you, you never would have died," she said. "It broke my heart to lose you, but you didn't go alone, for a part of me went with you, the day God took you home."

Danielle O'Brien told the gathering she was grateful for those who supported her during her recovery and shared the Serenity Prayer recited by those in recovery from addiction.

"God, grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, the courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference," she said. "Living one day at a time, enjoying one moment at a time, accepting hardship as a pathway to peace..."

O'Brien noted that some in attendance had multiple losses of loved ones to addiction and offered hope and "courage to continue on."

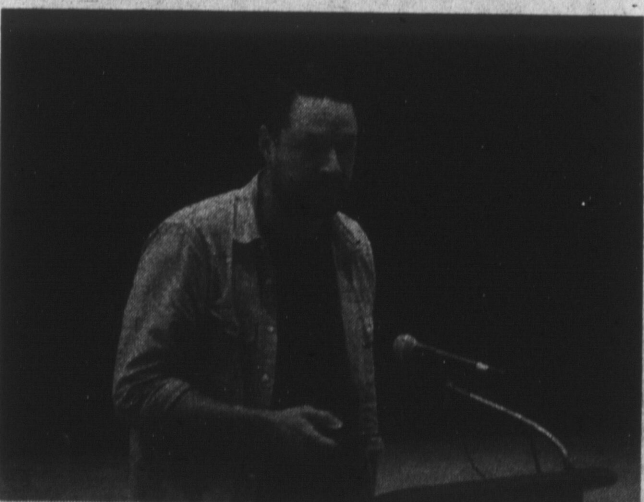

"It's so hard to accept that we lost someone we loved," she said. "That's why tonight it is so important that we come together. You are not alone. We have each other."

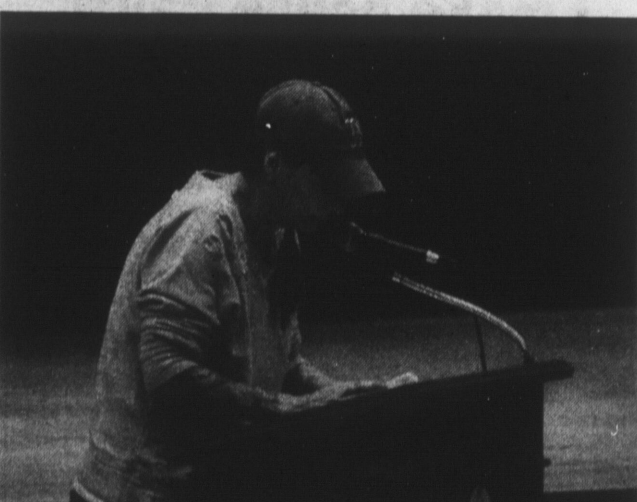

"LOVE DOES NOT die, people do," says "Jimmy" as he recites "The Legacy."

DANIELLE O'BRIEN tells the gathering that "Tonight we come together. You are not alone."

ZBA OKs Newcomb St. Apartments

The board on Oct. 8 approved Stephen Niosi's plan to construct the five-story building at 29-31 and 35-39 Newcomb Street. The two parcels contain 26,135 square feet of land in a Business C zoning district, with a single-family home and a two-family home currently on site.

The bottom two levels would include 64 parking spaces, while the 39 apartments — 18 one-bedroom units and 21 with two bedrooms — are located on the three upper floors. The developer had previously proposed to build 52 units on site but reduced the size of the building to allay neighbors' concerns about the scale of the project.

The board voted 4-1 in favor of the proposal, with chairman Martin Aikens casting the dissenting vote. The board attached conditions, previously recommended by the city's Planning Department, to its approval of the project.

The applicant had gone before the board on Sept. 24, at which time eight residents, including Councillor Anne Mahoney, voiced their opposition to the proposal. The board did not take a vote that night at the request of Aikens, who wanted more time to consider the matter.

At the outset of the Oct. 8 hearing, Aikens said the building would be too big for Newcomb Street and was concerned about shadows it could cast over nearby homes.

"I really think that creates a big void for the people behind them as far as the sun. That's just my opinion," Aikens said. "There are a lot of residents there and I have a problem with a building that size on that street."

The public hearing on the item was closed at the Sept. 24 meeting, so residents who attended the Oct. 8 meeting were unable to speak that night.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy was given the chance to speak at the meeting last week, and said he remained opposed to the project for several reasons, including the building being too big for the neighborhood.

"I think it's going to bother the neighborhood a little bit with its size," he said. "I'm still not in support. I would love to get it a little smaller. I would love to see it get developed — I don't want things to just sit there — but at this time I am still not buying into it."

McCarthy also cited concerns with flooding in the area and the size of Newcomb Street, which he described as a narrow street that has issues.

In response to the concerns raised by McCarthy and Aikens, Rob Fleming, Niosi's attorney, said the project had been thoroughly vetted by various city departments and an outside peer reviewer. The building, Fleming said, would not lead to increased flooding in the area.

"We are not going to be exacerbating any conditions," he said. "We're taking further measures by providing some compensatory storage on site, which is not required, but we're doing that, so the flooding concerns shouldn't be there."

Traffic concerns had also been vetted, Fleming said, and the Planning Department's recommended conditions include restrictions on hours of operation for deliveries because of the project's proximity to Quincy High School.

A shadow study undertaken by the applicant showed the building will cast shadows on Newcomb Street itself and on the YMCA parking lot, Fleming added.

In other business Oct. 8, the Zoning Board of Appeals:

Continued until Oct. 22 the hearing on Tony Wine's request to subdivide the land at 66 Crabtree Rd. into two lots and construct a single-family on the newly created lot.

Approved Ilda and Viron Gega's request to add a shed dormer to part of the third level at 107 Atlantic St. As part of the approval, the board attached a condition prohibiting the home from being converted to three-family structure.

Continued until Nov. 19 the hearing on Johanna Barry's request to tear down the home at 98 Bellevue Rd. and construct a new house on site. Board members asked Barry to reduce the height of the proposed new house.

Approved Kristin Bishop's request for a variance to subdivide the lot at 40 Smith St. into two lots.

Approved Philip Baker of Rockwood Design's request to demolish the garage at 72 Squanto Rd. and build a two-story addition with a two-car garage, mudroom, master suite and dormer to the attic.

Keenan Backs Markey In Senate Race

By SCOTT JACKSON

State Sen. John Keenan said he will support U.S. Sen. Edward Markey in his bid for re-election next year when he faces a tough primary opponent.

Markey, a Malden Democrat, was first elected to the Senate in a 2013 special election and re-elected the following year to a full six-year term. U.S. Rep. Joseph Kennedy III recently announced he would challenge Markey in next year's Democratic primary. Three others have declared they will run in the primary: Shannon Liss-Riordan, Steve Pemberton and Allen Waters.

Keenan, in a recent interview, said he is backing Markey in the race.

"I've gotten to know Senator Markey over the last few years as a U.S. senator," Keenan said. "On issues that I've worked on, I've found him to be very responsive and very involved. For instance, the opioid epidemic, he's really tuned into that and has been a good partner on that. On local issues, if something comes up, when we call his office, he is always responsive.

"I've gotten to know him and those are the things I've found about him - he's engaged and he's responsive - and I'm happy to support him. He has supported our efforts at the State House whenever we've needed help from the federal government."

Next year's election also features a presidential race. Keenan said he has not yet made an endorsement in the Democratic primary.

"Not at this point," he said when asked about an endorsement in the presidential primary. "I am focusing on what I can do at the state level. The federal government can handle what they have to handle, and I will focus where I think I have the most impact."

Keenan, a Quincy Democrat, was first elected to the state Senate in 2010. The former Quincy city councillor said he plans to run for a sixth term on Beacon Hill next year.

Absentee Voting Underway For Municipal Election

Absentee voting is underway for the Quincy municipal election.

Registered voters who wish to vote by absentee ballot can vote at the city election office, second floor, City Hall (glass annex building) Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Absentee voting will con-

Synthetic Oil, Home Charging Stations, Throttle Body Service

Ask John Paul: AAA New England's Car Doctor

I have a new Nissan and now have about 12,000 miles on it. The dealer has me coming in every 3,750 miles for routine oil changes. I've asked about using synthetic oil, so I could stretch out the time between oil changes. The dealer tells me synthetic oil isn't a good idea and I should stay with the 3750 mile service. The isn't a sports car just an Altima sedan, so I would think synthetic oil would be just fine and last longer. What is your thought?

I believe there are enough advantages to synthetic oil to consider switching from conventional oil on just about every vehicle. Synthetic oil offers better lubrication in extreme temperatures, offers greater protection against wear and keeps the engine cleaner than conventional oil. As good as synthetic oil is it doesn't allow extended oil change intervals. According to Nissan's service records, oil changes should be performed at 5000 mile intervals.

I locked my keys in my car (I should have called AAA) and a family member used a long piece of wire to get the door unlocked and ripped the rubber weather strip around the door. Can I glue this together or do I have to replace the entire weather stripping?

At AAA we use a similar technique but use a non-metallic tool, protective guards and a "air-wedge" to allow damage free unlocking. Depending on the damage, a little weather strip adhesive should fix the problem. You can buy weather strip adhesive at most auto-parts or body shop supply stores. If the main section of the weather strip is loose, you can secure it with the same adhesive.

After driving about two miles I lost the power steering in my Jeep. It appears that I left a trail of fluid when I left my parking space. I never got any symptoms of something wrong until this happened. Now my shop says that a hose burst, and I may need a new power steering pump, hoses and maybe even a complete steering gear, because I drove it "dry." This is going to cost a fortune, is this possible?

Yes, it is possible, but may not be as extensive or as expensive as your shop is leading you to believe. The shop may just be giving you a worst-case scenario. I would start with replacing the line that burst and see how the system performs. If the repairs are more extensive you could also look into parts from a salvage yard as a cost-effective economical repair.

I have a 1965 Ford Mustang. It is a great little fun car with a simple six-cylinder engine. I don't drive it often but normally to get the car going, I pump the gas a couple of times and it fires right up. Lately it cranks until the battery just about goes dead and then it starts up. When it starts it runs a bit rough until the engine warms up. Any idea what is going on?

I would look at the basics to see what is happening. Start with simple diagnostics; is the choke closing and when you pump the gas can you see fuel squirting from the accelerator pump? A lazy carburetor choke plate, or carburetor that drains back to the tank could be a problem. Other issues could be a weak fuel pump, even a leaking fuel line could add to the problem. If the fuel system looks okay, a weak ignition system can also cause poor starting with a cold engine.

I'm considering an electric car and was wondering do I need to have a charging station at home. I do have a garage so charging the car would be easy.

I recently drove a Nissan Leaf with the larger long-range battery. The car was a good performer, both around town and out on the highway. The battery if completely discharged would take 36 hours to recharge using standard house current. With a level-2 (240-volt) charger it would easily charge overnight. What was nice about the Leaf, the charging cable could plug into a 240-volt outlet, similar to an electric dryer. An electrician could easily wire a 240-volt outlet into your garage and make charging a car as easy as charging your phone.

I have a Mazda 5 with bucket seats, the driver's seat back no longer locks into place and is moving when I drive. What kind of a repair shop do I need to contact to look at it?

Just about any kind of shop (body or general repair) could fix this issue, although a body shop performs these types of repairs more often. Many times, when a car is involved in a crash the seat back lock mechanism can become damaged. Some shops may want to replace the seat with a used seat, others may disassemble the seat and repair what is broken. My suggestion is to shop around a bit you may find prices vary based on how the repair is accomplished.

I have a 2001 Volvo XC70 and the automatic transmission seems to be slipping. How should I proceed?

The first step is to check the transmission fluid level. Your Volvo unlike some other vehicles has a transmission dipstick, allowing for quick and easy fluid checks. Low transmission fluid will certainly cause slipping. If the fluid is low add and reevaluate the transmission and repair the leak. If the fluid is ok, the next step would be to look for electronic problems. The control module will store fault codes, if no codes are present, then the transmission will most likely need to be overhauled.

My 2009 Ford Focus is about to hit 90,000 miles. It's been a reliable car, and other than muffler, brakes and tires, and regular oil changes, not much has been done for the car in 10 years. What services should I be looking to have done preventively at this milestone?

Keep doing exactly what you are doing. Pay attention to the vital fluids and replace them as necessary. As the car is entering its 11th year some things are just destined to wear out. This could be the starter, alternator, radiator, wiper motor and door locks and window motors. At this age you just need to accept some parts are just going to wear out. The best thing you can do is have a good repair technician give the car a yearly physical. This way they can give you an idea of the car's over all condition and let you know if you are "throwing good money after bad".

I work in a parking lot with hundreds of vehicles. As I walk into work, I can't help wondering why so many different makes of cars having clear/color coat peeling problems. I see it mostly on the hood and roof. What is going on?

Today, vehicle paint is much kinder to the environment and to the people who apply it. The primer coat is also very corrosion resistant and helps prevent vehicle rusting. The base coat of paint may even be electrostatically applied. The issue that I have seen is that as good as these paints are, their ability to reject ultra-violet light is in some cases poor. As the UV light attacks the paint/primer it will start to chalk, and the paint will start to fail. The most common areas are flat panels, the hood, roof and trunk when the paint dries out and oxidizes.

I have a 2009 Toyota

Prius and have been told the throttle body needs to be serviced. What is throttle body service and when is it necessary?

The throttle body on a fuel injected vehicle is the valve that allows air into the engine to mix with the fuel. This valve is controlled by the accelerator. The throttle can get contaminated, gummy, and sticky. The first symptom is a cold engine hesitation and a low idle. Cleaning a throttle body is considered preventative maintenance, although interestingly some manufacturers caution against it. If the engine is hesitating or the throttle has excessive amounts of deposits have the throttle body cleaned. If the engine is running well has a smooth idle it may not be necessary.

I have a Toyota Avalon, Toyota says they use world standard transmission fluid which never needs to be changed! Is that true, my car is a 2010, should the fluid be changed to keep the transmission running smooth?

Changing the transmission fluid is dictated by how you drive. Under normal circumstances there is no reason to change the fluid. Although if you drive routinely in stop and go traffic, tow a trailer or use your car for livery service the fluid should be changed at 60,000 miles.

I have a 2016 Mazda AWD CX-5 with 15,000 miles. Is it necessary to spend the money for their scheduled maintenance? They keep contacting me to schedule an appointment. And if I do, how can I avert their usual script of costly unneeded repairs or parts. Except for oil changes, I have had zero problems since the purchase of my car.

To maintain the vehicle warranty, you do need to follow the maintenance recommendations in the vehicle owner's manual. With your car in the next 17,000 miles the repairs are simple: oil and filter changes at 7,500 miles and at 30,000 miles a cabin air filter and at 37,500 an engine air filter. In addition, there are a few items that just need looking over. The dealer could have their own maintenance schedule, but my advice it to follow the schedule in the vehicle owner's manual.

I have had a Honda Civic for 15 years and it is time for a new car. I'm looking at the Toyota Corolla, even though I have had good luck with the Civic. One reason that I'm looking at the Corolla is I have read about issues with the new Honda engines. What do you think?

When comparing the Toyota Corolla and the Honda Civic I would always rate the Corolla as a first choice and the Civic as a very close second choice. Although recently I drove the latest Honda Civic and thought it was just about a perfect compact car. The engine was responsive and economical, the handling was more like a sports car and the overall design (with the exception of the infotainment system) was spot on. As far as I have I can tell any issues with the engine have been resolved. The Corolla is still a great car and is also one that is easy to recommend.

Five Quincy Detectives Attend DA Homicide Conference

Five Quincy Police detectives joined more than 115 colleagues from across the state at a recent three-day homicide investigation seminar hosted by Norfolk Dist. Atty. Michael W. Morrissey and the Massachusetts State Police and Mass Bay Community College.

"The case law and forensic science that shapes how we investigate homicides constantly evolves," Morrissey said. "There are a lot of moving parts in a homicide investigation—collecting physical evidence, video evidence, telephone evidence, testamentary evidence all has to happen simultaneously and within Constitutional limitations. The more detectives train and understand that process, the better the result."

The conference featured Massachusetts Chief Medical Examiner, Dr. Mindy Hull, Sacramento Deputy

DETECTIVES JAMES KARVELIS, left, and William Monteith, center, spoke with District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey at the 3-day homicide conference he recently co-hosted with the Massachusetts State Police and Mass Bay Community College.

Sheriff Paige Kneeland, who investigated the Golden State Killer case in California, Sgt. Brandon Letterman, who investigated the Todd Kohlhepp serial killer case in South Carolina, and New Jersey State Police Det.

Sgt. Glenn Garrels, who presented on investigating officer-involved shootings.

Norfolk DA Multimedia Director Coleen Crawford instructed on proper digital evidence collection and DA Morrissey's General

Counsel Marguerite Grant both presented on recent case-law changes and sat on the Emerging Legal Trends panel discussion, moderated by conference organizer Trooper Brian Tully, including Superior Court Judge Rosalind Miller and Christopher Kelly, the Digital Evidence Laboratory Director for Attorney General Maura Healey.

Mass State Police Trooper Brian Estevez from the MSP Gang Unit presented on homicide investigations involving street gangs.

QPD detectives James Karvelis, Bill Monteith, Michael Eddy, Jimmy Chen, and Daniel Guarene represented the department.

"The State Police detectives assigned to my office and I work to maintain strong partnerships with the members of our local departments," Morrissey said. "When a homicide happens, it is important that we can work together and that we are working based on the same training and understanding of what is to be done."

A Job Well Done

from the vehicle were five phones.

Due to the past intelligence of the male suspect concealing drugs in his crotch/buttocks area as well as the collective experience of the detectives that drug dealers have females conceal narcotics at their behest, the decision was made to have a canine sniff performed for both suspects. Prior to booking at the station, Officer Dabilis and his passive narcotics canine, Karl, performed a sniff of the airspace around the separated suspects.

Officer Dabilis informed detectives that Karl alerted to a narcotic odor coming from both parties. During this time, detectives observed the male to be keeping his feet close together while he appeared to be clenching his buttocks. Detectives advised the male suspect that they believed that he was hiding drugs in his buttocks but he denied this. He was placed in a cell and monitored closely.

The detectives used the totality of circumstances to believe the male suspect was hiding drugs based on prior intelligence, canine alert and the underlying criminal offenses. Furthermore, by not submitting to the search, it was believed that the male suspect was attempting to impede the investigation and that a failure to conduct an authorized strip search could lead to harm to himself, other prisoners and the detectives assigned to monitor him. Essentially, allowing a prisoner who may have narcotics on their person jeopardizes the integrity of the cell block area and presents a serious danger. It was decided that the suspect would be monitored closely until he was brought to court, where the detectives would request a judge intervene. The fact that crack cocaine, Methamphetamine and Suboxone were found in their possession was vital.

Back at the station Detective Powers dialed the number obtained in the car stop and when it rang, it came back to one of the five cell phones found in the suspect's possessions. While monitoring the cell block, detectives saw the suspect fiddling with the rear of his pants and advised him to cease but he continued, so he was handcuffed in the front to prevent him from potentially destroying evidence.

The suspect, a 26-year-old Boston resident, with strong ties to Quincy, was charged with distribution of Class B - subsequent offense, distribution of Class D, possession of Class B - subsequent offense, conspiracy to violate the Controlled Substances Act, impeding/interfering with a police investigation and disorderly conduct.

The female, a 21-year-old Weymouth resident, was charged with distribution of Class B and conspiracy to violate the Controlled Substances Act. The male suspect who lives in the apartment will be summonsed for distribution of Class B and conspiracy to violate the Controlled Substances Act.

Ultimately, it is the belief of all detectives that the two suspects arrested conspired with the tenant/suspect to distribute crack cocaine to customers arriving there constantly. Evictions are soon to follow!

Nice Work!

(The most recent update prior to posting this story is that the suspect was going to be brought to a hospital where the drugs would be removed by a surgeon if the suspect didn't comply.)

Union Congregational Church Welcomes Rev. Joy Eng-Matos

The members of Union Congregational Church voted overwhelmingly in favor of calling Rev. Joy Eng-Matos to be their Settled Minister. Pastor Joy, a Spirit-filled minister who preaches the Word of God, the Holy Scriptures, in a vibrant and inspirational way, has been a frequent guest minister at the church for the past year.

Pastor Joy was raised Roman Catholic. As a teen, she became involved in Teen Challenge's ministry in NYC. In her home church, she became a youth leader, a Sunday School teacher, and preached her first sermon at the age of 17. Sensing a call to ministry, after two years at NYU School of Business, she transferred to Central Bible College where she earned a Bachelor of Arts in Bible. Since then, Pastor Joy raised a family, earned an MBA, and worked (most recently for Harvard University and MIT) while also remaining involved in various aspects of church ministry. She has led Bible Studies and Alpha programs, founded a Women's Ministries at a local church, coordinated Vacation Bible School, assisted in church planting, and participated in short-term missions among other things.

Pastor Joy served the First Church of Squantum as Minister of Education and Outreach. She was ordained in 2012 and is a member of the National Association of Congregational Christian Churches. She has also served as Interim Pastor at First Congregational Church of Hanson.

Pastor Joy is also the founder and minister of New Day-Quincy, housed at Union Congregational Church, where she ministers to new immigrants through an English-for-Speakers-of-Other-Languages (ESOL) program and plants the seeds of the Gospel among those who have never heard of Jesus before.

This past May, Pastor Joy graduated from Boston University School of Theology with a Masters in Theological Studies and a certificate

Marine Gen. Joseph Dunford Retires

Quincy Native Served 42 Years In the Military, Was Nation's 19th Chairman Of Joint Chiefs Of Staff

By Chief Petty Officer ELLIOTT FABRIZIO
USS Constitution

Nineteenth Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff (CJCS) Marine Gen. Joseph F. Dunford Jr. retired from military service in the USS Constitution Museum with ceremonial support from USS Constitution's crew, Oct. 11.

The CJCS is the nation's highest-ranking military officer, and the principal military advisor to the President, Secretary of Defense, and National Security Council.

Prior to becoming chairman, Dunford — a Quincy native — served as the 36th Commandant of the Marine Corps, and he has served 42 years in the military.

"What an honor it has been to serve alongside you, and to represent you here in Washington, D.C., and across the globe," Dunford said in a recent farewell video message to the military. "It's because of you that I am confident that we can defend the homeland and our way of life. It's because of you that we have earned the trust and confidence of allies and partners around the world. It's because of you that people believe in America."

USS Constitution is the world's oldest commissioned warship afloat, and is deeply connected to U.S. Marine Corps Heritage.

The Naval Act of 1794 mandated the ship's original crew include 50 Marines, and the line in the Marine Corps' hymn "... to the shores of Tripoli..." comes from the Barbary War, where USS Constitution's Navy and Marine Corps team fought together over land and sea to secure peace.

Additionally, Brig. Gen. Archibald Henderson, the U.S. Marine Corps 5th Commandant (nicknamed the 'Grand Old Man of the Marine Corps'), served aboard USS Constitution during the battle with HMS Cyane and HMS Levant. He was decorated for bravery and gallantry in battle during the War of 1812.

USS Constitution is designated America's Ship of State, and her active-duty Navy crew engage in community outreach and education about the Navy's history and the importance of naval power to more than 500,000 visitors each year.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)

It might not be wise to pursue goals involving others, unless you can stop impulsively rejecting new ideas. Either open your mind or wait until next week, when this "ornery" mood passes.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)

It's a good time for the Bovine to be creative and practical for yourself and your surroundings. Shop wisely, not impulsively, and keep your Bull's eye focused on quality, not quantity.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)

You should feel more confident about moving ahead with plans that had to be delayed by an unexpected turn of events. Also, family matters might need more time than first anticipated.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)

Be considerate of others as you move into a new area in your professional life. Take time to meet people and discuss mutual goals. The more you get to know each other, the better.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)

Creating a fuss could get your ideas noticed quickly. But it would be best to present your case, and then wait for a reaction to follow in due course, rather than try to force it to happen.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22)

Unkept promises might cause plans to go awry this week. You can either grumble about people "letting you down" or find a way to make the best of it and move on. The choice is yours.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)

Putting off making a commitment early in the week could be a good move. It's best to act when you know you're making an informed decision. Expect more facts to emerge by the week's end.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)

A recent act of kindness on your part could take on special meaning this week. Also, look for signs of upcoming changes in both your personal and professional relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)

Many of the tougher communication barriers between you and others in the workplace or at home could begin breaking down this week. Expect some surprises to emerge.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19)

Your "tough love" attitude toward someone you care for could be misunderstood. Try to be less judgmental and show more consideration in the way you relate to that person.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18)

An unexpected workplace challenge could be daunting. But take what you know (and you know more than you realize) and apply it to the problem, and you should see positive results.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20)

Recent relationship changes for both single and paired Pisces continue to influence much of your week. Keep your focus on developing the positive aspects as you move along.

BORN THIS WEEK: You set your goals with assurance and influence others to follow suit. You would be an excellent philosopher and teacher.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- The CW is preparing a reboot of "Walker, Texas Ranger" with "Supernatural" star Jared Padalecki in the title role. Padalecki played Dean Forester in "Gilmore Girls" from 2000-05 and then went right into "Supernatural" as Sam Winchester for the past 15 seasons. This will be a taller, younger Cordell Walker. Jared is 37 years old and stands 6 feet, 4 inches tall, while Chuck Norris was 53 when he was Walker and stood 5 feet, 10 inches. How did the CW get the idea for Padalecki to play Walker? Maybe it was that 2011 episode of "Supernatural," in which he played the Texas ranger. Jared also starred in "House of Wax" (2005), with CW star Chad Michael Murray and Elisha Cuthbert. Notably, the audience always applauded when the villain got Paris Hilton. Jared wed actress Genevieve Cortese (whom he met on the set of "Supernatural") in 2010, and they have two sons and a daughter. Norris, now 79, is wed to former model Gena O'Kelley, 23 years his junior. She brought two children to their union and had twins with him in 2001. Norris also has 13 grandchildren. His last film was "The Expendables 2," a virtual who's who of action stars with Sylvester Stallone, Jason Statham, Jet Li, Dolph Lundgren, Liam Hemsworth, Jean-Claude Van Damme, Bruce Willis and Arnold Schwarzenegger. Now that Sylvester Stallone has retired Rambo (so he says), he's far from retiring. He's currently shooting the thriller "Samaritan," about a young boy searching for a superhero who vanished 20 years earlier.

Could've eaten the "Downton Abbey" film with a spoon, it was that delicious. It was like the six years of the PBS series had never ended. Producers said before its release that a sequel would depend on how moviegoers greeted it, and judging from the box office response they're now considering making a "Downton Abbey" film every year as long as fans want them.

Ana de Armas, who impressed in "Blade Runner 2049," has three films ready for release: "Wasp Network," with Penelope Cruz and Gael Garcia Bernal; the mystery thriller "Knives Out," starring Daniel Craig, Chris Evans, Michael Shannon, Jamie Lee Curtis and Christopher Plummer (due Nov. 27); and the crime drama "The Night Clerk," with Tye Sheridan, Helen Hunt and John Leguizamo. She is set to play Marilyn Monroe next. The Netflix film is simply called "Blonde," and she'll have Oscar-winner Adrien Brody, Emmy-winner Bobby Cannavale and Lily Fisher supporting her. Also in the film is Chris Lemmon, whose father, Jack Lemmon, starred with Marilyn Monroe in "Some Like It Hot."

Carol Burnett returns to movies in the Netflix musical comedy "Sorta Like a Rock Star," about an abnormally optimistic teenage girl who must face a devastating loss. Does Carol pull her ear in movies? We'll find out!

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Water Carriers -- Everyday life was often depicted in paintings or figurines in the days when photographs were unknown. Familiar workers like firemen, soldiers, farmers or royalty were made from porcelain or metal. Several important factories, including the Royal Worcester company of England, Royal Dux, Zsolnay, Goldscheider, Hummel, Lladro and KPM, made water-carrier figures of porcelain. Others created bronze figures. They must have had a very important, very familiar job to have been subjects for so many makers. Most people today do not realize that the water carrier was an important person. Water had to be scooped from a well, then walked to the center of the city or perhaps carried in a cart, where it was ladled into containers held by customers. There were no wells or piped-in water supplies.

The figures were very similar -- usually a pair, a man and a woman, each holding a pouring jug and a large container of water. They were wearing the common clothes of the country. The woman often carried the water bottle on her head. Each figure was 10 to 15 inches tall, and most were glazed in appropriate colors. A pair of marked Royal Worcester water carriers made in the late 19th century sold for $240 at a Cowan's auction.

Q: I am trying to identify a table I inherited from an aunt. The table has a paneled drawer, applied panels on the sides and a turned trestlelike base with a shelf. It had an inset leather top that was tattered, and there is an odd drawer hanging underneath. This piece was covered in black tar from years in a basement. I don't know what is. I think it was part of a home library. Can you help?

A: You have a ladies' work table, probably from the late Victorian era. Sewing or work tables originated in England about 1770 and were used in America after the Revolutionary War. Women gathered in a parlor and worked around a small table with a surface for writing, needlework or other activities. Early work tables were Sheraton or Empire and often made of mahogany. They had a drawer or two for storage. Later Victorian tables were heavily carved with turned scroll legs. Most had an extra storage compartment under the top -- either a cloth sack or a compartment under the central drawer. Ladies' work tables auction for about $225 to $600.

CURRENT PRICES

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was Austrian philosophical author Robert Musil who made the following sage observation: "It's not the genius who is 100 years ahead of his time but average man who is 100 years behind it."

* Here's a sign of our increasingly cluttered lives: When the National Association of Professional Organizers was formed in 1985, it had five members. Today there are more than 3,500 registered organizers with the group.

* Despite many people's assumptions, the word "bayou" doesn't come from French; it's from the Choctaw word "bayuk."

* Those who study such things say that in tunnels that have lighting on the sides rather than above, the placement of those lights can influence the likelihood of people speeding. Evidently, the farther apart the side lights are placed, the faster drivers go.

* Florida famously harbors many species of orchid -- and one of them smells so bad that it's been known to make bees sick. It's called the Violent Stench.

* In February of this year, a Japanese man named Yuya Yamada broke his own Guinness World Record for the largest hula hoop spun around the body three consecutive times -- the hoop in question measured 17.72 feet in diameter.

* If you harbor overmuch ill will toward your mother-in-law, you could be described as "penteraphobic."

* It was Britain's Prince Albert who originated the boutonniere. It seems that while they were courting, Queen Victoria offered a small bouquet of flowers to her future husband. Prince Albert used his pocketknife to cut a hole in the lapel of his jacket and put the stems of the bouquet through it.

Thought for the Day: "If you watch a game, it's fun. If you play at it, it's recreation. If you work at it, it's golf." -- Bob Hope

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* "You set a curfew and a bedtime for your children because you know that kids need a good amount of sleep to keep those little bodies growing and their minds happy. Do you do the same for yourself? It's tempting to stay up late zoning out after the kids are (finally) in bed, but make sure you get your rest, too. Set a bedtime and stick to it." -- T. in Oklahoma

* Love your pod coffee maker but hate the waste? Almost every brand has some sort of reusable filter that you can purchase. They are cost-efficient and much better for the environment. As a bonus, just add those used coffee grounds to your compost pile or sprinkle them in your garden.

* "My grandma came to visit and left behind a box of bunion pads. Since she didn't want them back, I used them on the bottom of my kitchen chairs to keep them from scraping up the floor. They are self-stick, and they worked like a charm." -- E.S. in Indiana

* Self-care tip: Sometimes taking care of yourself means saying yes, and sometimes it means saying no. Turn off push notifications from smartphone apps and email when they aren't absolutely necessary. You'll find it easier to focus, and odds are good that you won't really miss anything important. Schedule check-in times through the day if needed.

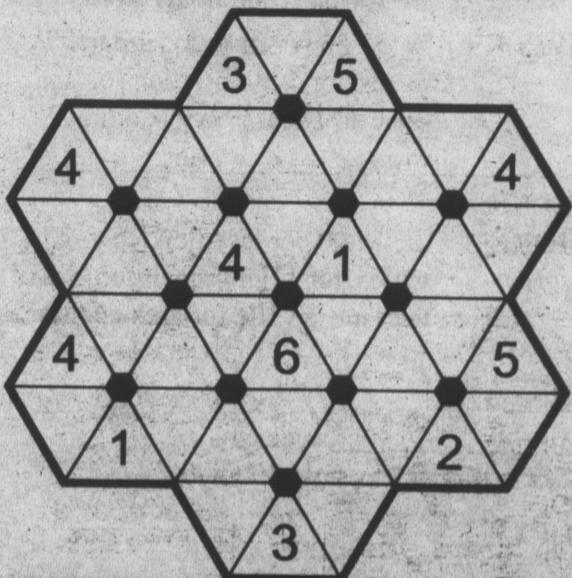

* "I have found a great second use for a coffee-can lid. Use it to catch paint drips when you're painting a ceiling or the underside of anything. Just cut a slit in the lid and slip it over the brush handle. That way, the paint drips on the saucer, and saves you a sleeve." -- O.J. in North Carolina

CREMATION CARE

John Keohane,
Funeral Director

Is advance funeral planning still important if I am going to be cremated?

YES! In fact, for those choosing cremation, advance planning is even more important because there are so many options available to them.

Advance planning ensures not only that your wishes will be carried out, but that they will be balanced with the needs of your family. In this way, not only will your family be aware of your wishes but they can also be involved in the decision-making process so that when the time comes, they will have the peace of mind of knowing that they are honoring you in a most meaningful way. There are many choices to make however, and the cremation experts at Keohane are here to help you choose the ceremonies and disposition that will fulfill your wishes, serve your family's needs, align with your estate planning and fit your budget.

Choose the Type of Ceremonies

Cremation offers more ceremony options than casket burial and, for families who have not done any advance planning, this can be overwhelming. Most families choose ceremonies in which the deceased is present for open casket visitation and a funeral ceremony in a church, funeral home or other location followed by cremation. Many families choose to have cremation take place first, followed by a period of visitation and a funeral ceremony followed by final disposition. Some families choose to have some variation of these choices either before or after cremation such as visitation only or a funeral ceremony only or a memorial service or a graveside ceremony. Cremation opens the door to almost limitless ceremony choices and our dedicated funeral directors are committed to helping you select those ceremonies that will provide the greatest benefit to you and your family.

Choose A Method of Final Disposition

There are many options for final disposition after a person has been cremated. Most families feel a need for permanent memorialization and choose earth burial or placement in a columbarium niche. Many families choose to scatter the deceased in a meaningful location. Some families find great comfort and value in cremation jewelry or keepsake urns so that multiple family members may remain physically connected to the deceased. There are even families who choose burial, scattering and keepsakes! With so many different options, advance planning helps families determine which are best for them.

Create Personal and Meaningful Ceremonies

Funerals are for the living! The cremation experts at Keohane know that people often choose cremation because its versatility helps families create individualized experiences. Our funeral directors believe that every person is unique so every funeral should be unique. With advance planning, you will have the opportunity to consider the location of the ceremony, the person who will officiate, what clothing to wear, the music to be played, the way photos and videos are displayed, the way guests will be received, who will participate in the ceremonies and even what type of food will be served!

Provide Peace of Mind

The number one reason people complete advance funeral planning is peace of mind and for those choosing cremation, this is especially true. Making ceremony and disposition choices in advance relieves families of the burden of having to do so after a death occurs and allows them to focus solely on creating a personal and meaningful experience. In addition, most families also use a pre-need funeral contract to set aside the financial resources necessary for the funeral expenses. This not only reduces the financial burden for those left behind but also protects assets for Medicaid eligibility. Considering all of the options available to those choosing cremation, advance planning will certainly provide peace of mind.

The cremation experts at Keohane are committed to providing families with complete information about cremation. Please call us at 1-800-KEOHANE. We are here to help.
